

WOMEN

Continued from Page 5

The only program at the Women's Center that isn't IFC-funded, the Women's Diversity group, receives $4,000 and a $175 a month director stipend from the ASUO.

A new service, Women's Diversity, was created this year to promote greater involvement at the center among women from different ethnic and cultural groups. The Women's Task Force provided similar services last year, but disbanded after women of color complained that their voices weren't being heard.

Program leader Zeenab Johnson-Fowlk said she has few set ideas of what she would like to do and instead will rely heavily on student suggestions.

"I'm really concerned about outreach to all women doing things together," she said.

Once she gets volunteers for the program, she said she expects the women will talk about such diverse topics as racism, career planning and leadership skill.

What she won't do is put any limits on what the group will do. "You can't really put women into a category," Johnson-Fowlk said. "You want to go to different concerns and issues."

Getting women from different ethnic groups to participate is the key, she said. "As an African-American woman, I don't know what European-American women go through."

The fourth women's group headquartered at the Women's Center is Saferide, an evening shuttle service for women. Created to give women a safe alternative to walking alone at night and risking a possible attack, Saferide provides both on and off-campus routes.

Most leaders of the four women's groups said they appreciate the extra services they receive from keeping their offices together in the Women's Center. They said one of the best benefits is Hasani Kudura, a full-time staff person who helps the different co-directors accomplish their goals.

But most are proud of their independent status and are not interested in the possibility of combining their services to create one comprehensive women's program.

"All these groups are essential," Stegner said. "Each works on a specific agenda." Johnson-Fowlk agreed. "You can't place all women in the women's center and expect them to do the same thing," she said.

You can find stamps
& envelopes
at the UO
Bookstore.

CLASS: ECONOMICS

TERM: Fall 1991

INSTRUCTOR: Lane Transit District

- 1) Does SUPPLY follow DEMAND or vice versa?
- 2) How would you describe an INFLATIONARY SPIRAL? What steps would you take to negate the effects within one year?
- 3) Do you believe in K-WAVE THEORY? Where are we today according to this model?
- 4) Is the RECESSION ending or DOUBLE-DIPPING? Use the current S/P stock index as substantiation.
- 5) YOU CAN RIDE THE BUS... ANYWHERE. ANYTIME. ALL TERM LONG. JUST BY SHOWING YOUR STUDENT ID. Is this an example of free enterprise? Fedspeak? Or a very good deal?

BONUS

- 6) Compare the cost of owning and operating a car versus the cost of riding the bus. CALCULATE THE NET GAIN IN DISPOSABLE INCOME OVER A FOUR-YEAR PERIOD.