Burwell loss bodes ill for Ducks

By Jake Berg
Emerald Sports Editor

Oregon's football team experienced an unfortunate face lift over the last two weeks.

"We are pretty beat up," Coach Rich Brooks said Wednesday. "We've got some bumps and bruises."

Many of the names and numbers Duck fans looked forward to before the season began are now injured, and they couldn't have come at a worse time as USC visits town for an 8 p.m. matchup Saturday.

Nonetheless, the anticipated capacity crowd hopes the Ducks will not perform like substitutes.

Most notable of the losses Saturday night may be tailback Sean Burwell. The sophomore led the Pacific-10 Conference in rushing after the Ducks' first two games, but a sprained ankle he suffered in practice prevented him from playing in Oregon's loss at Utah, and will likely keep Burwell "extremely doubtful" for the USC game.

Brooks said Burwell didn't practice Monday or Tuesday and called the status of
