Research center gets new director

The University's Center for the Study of Women in Society has brought Sandra Morgen on board as its new director.

Morgen, formerly an associate professor of women's studies at the University of Massachusetts, will become an associate professor in the University's Department of Sociology.

The center is a nationally recognized, multidisciplinary feminist research organization. It supports research on women and gender by university and community scholars, and sponsors speakers and events concerning women.

Morgen has edited and published two books: Gender and Anthropology: Critical Reviews for Research and Teaching and Women and the Politics of Empowerment. She is presently writing a book about the women's health movement.

Morgen graduated Phi Beta Kappa from the University of Texas at Austin and received master's and doctoral degrees from the University of North Carolina.

A public reception for Morgen will be held at 3:30 p.m. today in Gerlinger Hall's alumni lounge.

University Foundation elects new officers

The University Foundation has elected four new officers and appointed seven new members to its board of trustees.

The foundation is governed by a 57-member board of trustees and provides opportunities for individuals, foundations and groups to support education and student programs at the University.

The newly elected officers are: Board President Charles Warren, a 1962 University graduate and president of Excalibur Cutlery and Gifts, Inc., of Eugene; Chairman Robert Atkinson Jr. of Portland, a 1954 graduate; First Vice President Carolyn Chambers of Eugene, a 1953 graduate; and Second Vice President Arthur Carmichael Jr. of San Jose, Calif., a 1962 graduate

The new board members are: John Herman of Beaverton, a 1960 University graduate; David Sparks of Eugene, a 1966 graduate; Peter Williams of Portland, a 1955 graduate; David Petrone of San Francisco, Calif., a 1966 graduate; Richard Jernstedt of Chicago, Ill., a 1969 graduate; Edwin Artzt of Cincinnati, Ohio, a 1951 graduate; and John Kageyama of Vancouver, Wash., a 1958 graduate.

University program receives Portland award

The University's Applied Information Management Program received the Portland Chamber of Commerce Program Recognition Award on Wednesday.

The award recognizes university and college programs that serve adult students and specifically contribute to meeting labor and employer needs in the Portland metropolitan area.

The program is based at the University's Portland Center, and was established in 1986.

AIM is a fully accredited, multidisciplinary master of science degree program designed to provide managers and other professionals with the necessary knowledge and tools to operate as leaders in the rapidly changing high technology field.

Assistant director for research institute

The Advanced Science and Technology Institute has chosen Cheryl Coate to fill the newly created position of assistant director.

Coate will assist in marketing the research capabilities and technologies of Oregon's four major research universities: the University of Oregon, Oregon State University, Portland State University and Oregon Health Sciences University.

The institute's primary goal is to make university-based research more accessible to the private sector by serving as an access point for research programs and faculty expertise at the four universities.
