

Runners garner three of top four spots

The fourth-ranked Oregon women's cross country team claimed three of the top four individual places but were edged out by third-ranked Arkansas at the Stanford Invitational on Saturday.

Lucy Nusrala, Lisa Karnopp and Nicole Woodward finished first, third and fourth, respectively, but Arkansas had five runners in the top 15 as they won the 5,000-meter race with 52 points compared to Oregon's 59.

Nusrala won the race by 12 seconds over Pam Hunt of Cornell with a time of 16:39. Karnopp came in at 16:52 and Woodward finished right behind at 16:54.

Coach Tom Heinonen said he was pleased with the results.

"We looked really good up front," he said. "I think our big three showed that they are for real."

Ninth-ranked Brigham Young finished third with 109, followed by No. 13 Arizona with 129, No. 19 Cal-Irvine with 143 and Cornell with 146.

Other Oregon finishers were Carol Holmen (18), Jenna Carlson (33), Jill Callero (42), and Erika Klein (51).

"Holmen had a terrific race, and Jenna ran as well as she did in our last meet," Heinonen said.

The team is out of action until the Jeff Drenth Memorial in Eugene Oct. 19.

the Duck offense was nearly outscored by the defense, which had two interception returns for touchdowns.

Linebacker James Bautista scored the first touchdown of the game when he intercepted a deflected Ledbetter pass and had an 11-yard return that he ended with a nifty hurdle over one of his own teammates and into the end zone.

Smith, who returned to the team this week after a week's suspension, picked off a pass that was tipped by safety Chad Cota and returned it 94 yards for a touchdown that put the Ducks up 21-3 early in the third quarter.

That was just one of numerous times the Aggies would get within striking distance of the end zone, only to have the Ducks stop the drive. New Mexico State moved the ball into Oregon territory six times in the game but could only come up with two field goals.

"If we ever could have made a big play when we were close, it could have given us some momentum," New Mexico

The Aggies helped the Ducks go up 14-0 after they were called for roughing the kicker on an Oregon punt deep in their own territory. Tailback Donovan Moore capped off the drive with a one-yard touchdown run late in the first quarter.

Salisbury started the third quarter with a nine-yard completion to sophomore Juan Shedrick, but was leveled by Quinton Tezeno for a 10-yard loss two plays later. He then threw a floater that was picked off by George Sykes.

Aggie quarterback David Chisum returned the favor three plays later when Smith had his 94-yard dash.

The game marked the return of tailback Sean Burwell after he had missed the past two weeks with a bad ankle. Burwell finished the game with 74 yards on 17 carries.

Oregon, which entered the weekend hoping to even its conference record at 3-3, was ambushed by a surprising Washington team on Friday.

A crowd of 814 ate free pizza and watched the Huskies take three straight from a Duck team that hit only .069 for the match.

Washington came into the game without a Pac-10 win, but the Huskies scored the first nine points of the match. Oregon never seriously threatened after that, losing 10-15, 9-15, 7-15.

Oregon didn't quite know what to expect from Washington after the Huskies' coach, Debbie Buse, resigned suddenly on Thursday. Bill Neville, who coached the Canadian National team at the 1976 Olympics, is Washington's interim coach.

"It was a classic example where shock shakes a team out of the doldrums," said Neville. "Oregon had some injuries, and we made a lot of great plays."
