Netters head north to face Beavers

By Jayson Jacoby
 Emerald Sports Reporter

Tonight's Pacific-10 Conference volleyball game between Oregon and Oregon State in Corvallis will feature two teams heading in the same direction — but not necessarily the direction they would like.

The Ducks and the Beavers are tied for seventh place in the Pac-10 with 1-7 records, ahead of only the winless Arizona Wildcats.

Both teams have lost five straight conference matches and each has beaten Arizona for their sole Pac-10 win.

The difference is that Oregon was expected to contend for a high finish in the conference before a rash of injuries decimated Coach Gerry Gregory's starting line-up, but Oregon State, under first-year coach David Gantt, was picked to finish last in a pre-season coaches poll.

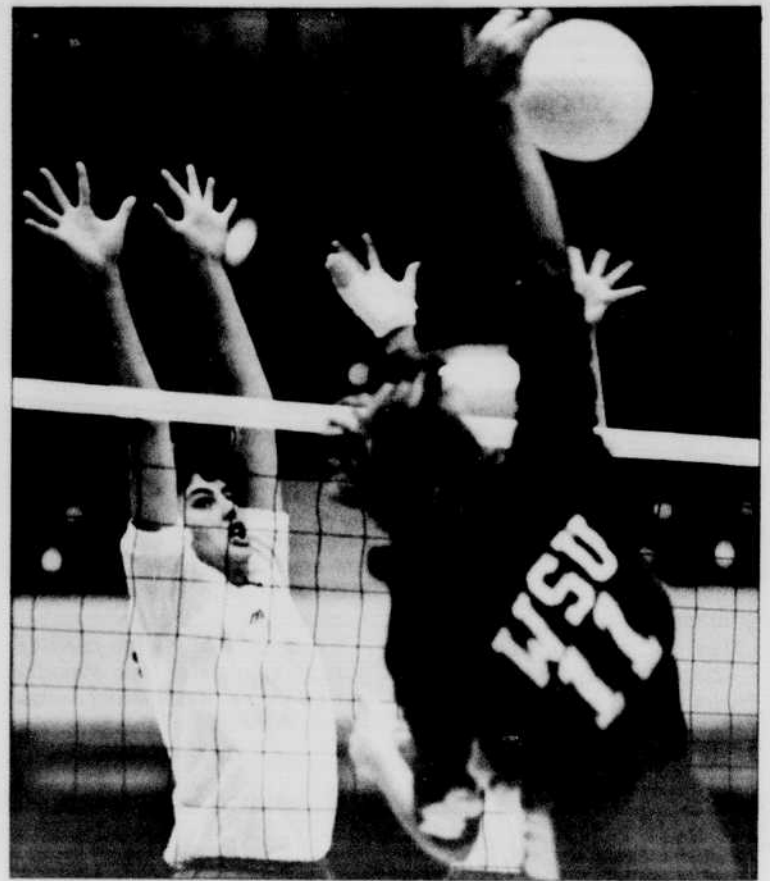

Oregon's injury woes will continue tonight as senior starters Mindee Adams and Molly McGrath are sidelined by nagging injuries. Adams has a stress fracture of the ankle which has kept her on the bench for much of the season, and McGrath has not played in more than two weeks with a lower back injury.

The Ducks and Beavers have already tangled once this season, in a September tournament match that Oregon took in a tough five games.

Since that win, Oregon has lost eight of nine, and Oregon State has won only three of 10, including a non-conference win Tuesday night against the University of Portland.

The Beavers, 9-12 overall, came into this season with a lot of question marks after finishing third in the Pac-10 last year with a 23-10 overall record. Gantt took over the team after an incident last year involving the former coach and a player that ended up with neither returning.

Gantt has previously coached women's collegiate volleyball at Northern Montana and at Montana State, as well as a stint with the United States National Men's Team. Gantt said this year has been an interesting one. "It's been a roller-coaster," he said. "We've been in position to win a lot of matches, but we haven't gotten over the hump. We haven't established that we can play consistently night in and night out."

Oregon, too, has been through its share of ups and downs, starting the season with nine straight wins and earning a spot in the national rankings. But the Ducks have been without at least one pre-season starter in every match this season.

Gregory said that although both Adams and McGrath aren't playing this weekend, they are getting closer to being ready.

"Both are feeling more comfortable this week than they have in some time," Gregory said.

Gregory said the new line-up forced by the injuries, which includes four freshmen seeing a lot of playing time, is still coming together. "This team just has to find itself," Gregory said. "They have to learn how to win those close games. I know that we will. This team has to believe in themselves and at this point I think they have some doubts."

Gregory said the injuries to Adams and Marcie Price, who broke a finger in a pre-season practice and returned two weeks ago, had an effect on the Ducks in their first meeting with Oregon State.

"We did not play particularly well the first time (against OSU)," he said. "We had just lost Mindee, and we played a different line-up than we ever had before."

Gregory said that line-up, which has played together for most of the matches since then, should be ready.

"We're fully capable of beating OSU, but it's going to be a real battle."

Tonight's match gets under way at 7:30 in Gill Coliseum.

Ticketmaster comes to campus

The University has announced that the Oregon athletic ticket office has become an outlet for G.I. Joe's Ticketmaster, allowing Eugene-Springfield area residents a chance to purchase tickets for many sporting and entertainment events in the Northwest.

University Ticket Manager Hunt Holsapple also announced that the sale of $11 student tickets for the Oregon-Washington football game Oct. 26 in Seattle will go on sale Monday at 9 a.m. Students are allowed to purchase only one ticket, and a total of 500 tickets will be available to University students.

At the Ticketmaster outlet, tickets for Seattle's three major sports teams (Seahawks, Mariners and Sonics), Oregon State, Portland State and University of Portland athletic events, the Portland Winterhawks and Seattle Thunderbirds hockey teams and Tacoma Stars soccer club are available.

Tickets to concerts, theater and arts events in Portland and Seattle are also available at the University Ticketmaster.

"Tickets for Oregon athletic events can be purchased at all Ticketmaster outlets throughout the state," Holsapple said. "We can help fans purchase tickets for World Wrestling Federation when it's in Portland or Seattle, the Yakima Sun Kings of the Continental Basketball Association and hot air balloon flights and rafting trips. It's really an outstanding program."

The Oregon ticket office is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily and Saturdays of Oregon home football games.

Golfers get 4th at tournament

The Oregon women's golf team finished fourth Wednesday at the QFC/Ihlanfeldt Invitational in Redmond, Wash.

Arizona won the overall team race, cruising to a three-round total of 899 at the Sahalee Country Club.

The Ducks finished fourth with a 949 card.

Arizona teammates Annika Sorenstam and Debbie Parks took the top two individual places, respectively. Sorenstam's final score of 211 was good for first, and Parks' 221 got her second place.

Leigh Hornung was the top golfer for the Ducks, finishing at sixth with a 228. Other Oregon finishers included Shannon Maier and Starla Yamada tied at 26th with a 242 each, Beth Manczak at 29th with a 244, Karly Mills at 43rd with a 249, and Oregon individual Becca Giersdorf at 50th with a 253.
