Dan Vidlak

Wrestlers ranked third

After battling five of the top 20 wrestling teams in the nation last week at the Mat Town Classic in Pennsylvania, Friday's dual meet home opener against Stanford should seem like a cakewalk for the Oregon squad.

The Pacific-10 Conference match begins at 7 p.m. at McArthur Court.

Despite having three freshmen in the lineup, Duck wrestlers should be one of the top teams in the Pac-10 this year. In pre-season predictions, the Ducks are ranked behind only Arizona State and Oregon State in the Pac-10.

"This team is not what I would call a 'superstar' team, but it will be a decent team," Oregon coach Ron Finley said. "We hope to develop our young wrestlers as we go through the season."

All three of Oregon's freshmen have performed well in the early season. Corey Sonnen, a 134-pounder from Woodburn, was one of only two Ducks to capture a top-three finish at the Mat Town Classic.

Jason Muggy, a redshirt freshman from Ferndale, Wash., tied the NCAA Division-II national champion in his first collegiate meet during the Ducks' 37-2 win at Portland State in the season opener.

The other Oregon freshman, Scott Buzzard (177 pounds), and sophomore Chris Anderson (Hwt.) also scored for the Ducks in the tournament, placing eighth and fourth, respectively.

Finley's biggest concern now is not Duck inexperience, but the injury situation plaguing two of his top returnees.

Senior Dan Vidlak, ranked fifth in the nation at 118 pounds, re-aggravated a knee injury which occurred last season. Today, doctors will examine Vidlak's knee, which was operated on in the off-season, but he is expected to be out for at least one month.

Sophomore Mat Sprague, ranked 15th in the nation at 158 pounds, has begun working out with the team after arthroscopic surgery, but doesn't know when he will start his season.

Other top returnees include Jarrett Clark (126 pounds), Pat Hirai (134), Pat Craig (150), Darren Gustafson (158), Solomon Fulp (167), and Scott Myers (190).

Clark was the other Duck to capture third at the Mat Town Classic. Gustafson took fourth, and Myers placed sixth.

In the series with Stanford, the Ducks have been the dominant team, winning 18 of the 19 meetings between the schools.
