Beavers bullish in beating Ducks

By Jake Berg

Oregon State wrestled like bullies Wednesday night. The Beavers, who have been nothing short of pushovers recently in the Civil War, broke a seven-match losing streak to Oregon Wednesday, beating the Ducks 24-18 in front of more than a 1,000 fans at McArthur Court. The win was the first Civil War victory for Oregon State since a 20-16 win in 1987. The 20th-ranked Beavers improved to 7-1 overall and 4-0 in the Pacific-10 Conference, and 24th-ranked Oregon dropped to 7-3 and 3-2. Oregon coach Ron Finley was happy with his team's performance despite the loss. "I thought we wrestled fairly well," Finley said. "I thought we had a good effort from everybody tonight. "We just didn't have enough to get it done." Oregon looked like it had plenty at times. After three matches, the Ducks led Oregon State 11-3, the only defeat being 126-pounder Jarrett Clark's 10-5 loss to Beaver sophomore Babak Mohammadi, ranked fourth nationally at that weight. Third-ranked 118-pounder Dan Vidlak opened up the match with a big 25-10 win over Brian Nissen, and Cory Sonnen won by injury default over Glenn Nieradka in the 134-pound class. "The key match, of course, was the win at 134," Finley said. "That really put us in the match right there. We just couldn't hold the lead." Oregon split the next two matches to lead 14-7. Oregon State's Ryan Sugai downed Duck 142-pounder Pat Hiral, 18-8, but 150-pounder Pat Craig's 6-1 victory over Stoney Myers got Oregon back on the winning track. But that's when things began to go off the track for Oregon, too. The Beavers swept the next three matches to jump out to a 20-14 lead. Dan Alar decided Oregon's 158-pounder Darren Gustafson, 16-5, to start the spurt, and Trent Flack's pin of Oregon's Wood Norvell kept things going for Oregon State. Flack immediately took Norvell to the mat before pinning Norvell with only 48 seconds gone. The Beavers' next win, Boyd Ballard's 6-2 decision over 177-pound Scott Buzzard, was important to the Oregon State triumph. Ballard's victory gave Oregon State a fairly secure 20-14 lead. "That was the key match to our win," said second-year Beaver coach Mark Johnson, who beat the Ducks for the first time Wednesday. Two draws ended the match between the two teams. After nearly one-half hour, Oregon's Scott Myers drew with Jeff Monson in the 190-pound category, 4-4. The match lasted so long because Monson's nose suffered a deep cut whose bleeding forced the match to stall five times in the first period alone. A 1-1 tie between Oregon heavyweight Chris Anderson and Matt Willhite finished the match. Johnson was extremely happy with his team, and he said the win is part of his plan to revitalize the Beaver wrestling program. "This is what I'm trying to do with our program is taking it step by step," Johnson said. "It wasn't pretty but it was a win; we'll take it." Oregon next wrestles Saturday at Southern Oregon State.

Ducks fly south to face hot Sun Devils, Wildcats

By Jayson Jacoby

Arizona is one of those places Western Oregon residents dream about during the long, rainy winters. We wish we could escape the endless gray days and go to the warm, sunny Southwest. However popular Arizona may be to some, most Pacific-10 Conference men's basketball teams would rather avoid it. The biggest reason for all this dislike is the McKale Center, Arizona's home court where — until UCLA nipped the Wildcats by a point earlier this month — the visiting teams had lost 71 straight games. Not only that, but Tempe, home of the Arizona State Sun Devils, has been known to be unkind to traveling teams. It goes without saying, then, that the Oregon men's basketball team isn't looking forward to its trip to the Valley of the Sun that gets under way tonight with a 7 MST match-up with ninth-ranked Arizona (13-3 overall and 3-2 in the Pac-10) and winds up Saturday with a 7 p.m. game against Arizona State (11-6, 2-3) in Tempe. The struggling Ducks (5-10, 1-5) have lost five straight Pac-10 games and eight of their last nine overall. All of those losses — except for last Saturday's one-point heartbreaker to Washington — have been by at least 21 points. Meanwhile, the Wildcats have rebounded from back-to-back losses to second-ranked UCLA and Washington to win three straight. Oregon coach Don Monson said Saturday's loss wasn't what the Ducks wanted, but that it might be just what they needed. "I think definitely the Washington game helped (the team's) confidence," Monson said. "Saturday we played well, and more importantly, we shot better. And that's encouraging to the team." The Wildcats' frontcourt is
