Love dictionary makes wooing less worrisome

Who wrote the book of love? Just about everyone it seems: sighing romantics, blundering wannawoo-lem poets and acid-tongued love cynics.

No one's resource library of l'amour will be complete without A Dictionary of Love, a book with something for anyone who's ever loved, hoped to or wishing they hadn't.

Throughout history, everyone has said something about the ubiquitous warm fuzzies and emotional harangues of the "L" word. Now 600 of those quotations have been compiled, by author Gil Friedman, into a handy-dandy love dictionary for your Valentine's Day convenience.

Zsa Zsa Gabor, Mother Teresa, Woody Allen, Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh and hundreds of other "experts" have been quoted in this alphabetically arranged tome. Use its 191 quote categories for wooing or pondering ease, whether waxing ecstatic about love's delirious reveries or woefully weeping its depressing downturns. It's a great source of intellectual-sounding quotes for term papers and perfect Romeo-like lines to seduce your romantic interest.

A DICTIONARY OF LOVE

Over 600 love quotes from the profound arranged alphabetically into 191 subject categories by more than 300 authors, including Khalil Gibran, Bertrand Russell, Erich Fromm, Mother Teresa and Zsa Zsa Gabor.

Thinking of gettin' hitched? Look under "M" for "Marriage and Love." Been seeing the Big Green Monster lately? Check under "J" for "Jealousy and Love." Unsure of what it's all about? Try "L" for "Learning to Love."

Friedman said this compilation began as a love letter. Containing both personal words and love aphorisms, "It got too embarrassing, so I
