Iraqi journalist to speak

University students and faculty who have heard media reports on the Gulf War and its aftermath from the perspective of the American media will have the opportunity today to hear from an Iraqi journalist who covered the war.

Abdul-Quadir Shanwar, now a graduate student at Colorado State University, will be in the EMU Ben Linder Room at 1:30 p.m.

Ziyad Abdessalam, director of the Muslim Student Association, said Shanwar will speak about many different issues, including the effects of Western sanctions on the people of Iraq, rebuilding the country after the bombings, the role of the Israelis and Iranians, opposition parties within Iraq, and the Middle East peace talks.

Students hold unique fund-raiser

Kultura Pilipinas, the Philippine Student Organization, has come up with a unique way to do fund raising, instead of the usual bake sale in front of the University Bookstore.

This is the second term the group has held a raffle where tickets are sold and the winner gets an elaborate dinner at home. This term's winner, Bill Palmer, gets a seven-course Filipino dinner served and made for him by group members.

Gwen Rivera, PSO public relations officer, said the group raised over $120 this term.

Video on nuclear testing to be shown

Award-winning San Francisco filmmaker David L. Brown will present his latest video tonight documenting global efforts to ban nuclear testing.

"Bound By The Wind" will be shown at 6:30 in the IMC Studio A, in the basement of the Knight Library.

The 40-minute video portrays the international citizens' movement for a comprehensive nuclear test ban. "Bound by the Wind" captures personal testimonies, footage of anti-nuclear activists and the roots of anti-nuclear efforts.

APASU sponsors bone marrow search

The Asian/Pacific American Student Union will host a bone marrow donor testing drive tomorrow for people of Asian ancestry between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the EMU Walnut Room.

APASU co-director Gary Hoh said he became aware of the acute need for Asian marrow donors last year when he heard about a Korean-American student's search for a donor for her brother who had a fatal blood disease.

According to National Marrow Donor Program Registry statistics, there are now 148 Asian Americans who need transfusions because of disease.

However, the pool of potential donors for Asian Americans and all minorities is small, Hoh said. According to NMDPR, only about 5 percent of the half-million registered donors are of Asian ancestry. People of the same racial background are more likely to match.
