QUESTION:

Are you going to respond to President Myles Brand's letter by writing to legislators about higher education funding?

"Probably not mostly because it takes too much time. There are a lot of causes and lot of questions that you could answer and it's not the strongest on my mind right now."

--Don Draper
senior, linguistics

"Yes, because I think they could use all the help they can get and it's affecting us so if we want change we are the ones who should do something about it."

--Dena Neese
freshman, undeclared

"I think I will respond to the letter because it's a pressing issue and if (tuition) keeps going up I may have to go somewhere else."

--Chun Buey
junior, business

"I'm not going to answer it because I'm not going to be here next year. If I were still here I would do it. I think a large majority (of students) will just toss them."

--Stacy Strickland
senior, fine arts

"I probably will. I've been thinking very strongly about it. I usually don't do things like that but I think higher education is a real priority and I probably will respond."

--Chris Loughner
junior, journalism

"Yes, because I'm an out-of-state student and I'm paying a ton of money to go to school here. The only way anything is going to happen is if students try to get together to overturn it."

--Elaine McAlpine
senior, art history
