

Identification of History

Kate Utsey, a Museum of Natural History volunteer, gets Dr. Luther Cressman to sign his book for her at the museum's Identification Day March 14. Dr. Cressman taught in the Anthropology department from 1929 to 1963.

George Towe of Eugene (above) consults with Dr. Dave Wagner, associate professor of Biology, on a plant identification, while a couple of curious, young students ask Harold Dunn, museum docent, (right) about various types of rocks and minerals.
