

VOTES

oner, Barbara Rodgers and Jose Balderas.

Sara Dodge and Wendy Vejlupek were chosen to fill the two EMU board seats.

The overall voter turnout of 14.2 percent — 2,402 ballots cast — was better than in the last weeks primary when 13.1 percent voted.

Ballot Measure 4, supporting the fee reduction, was rejected by voters 805 to 1,348. Holly Ferguson, former ASUO vice presidential candidate, co-sponsored the measure and seemed disheartened by the news it had lost by such a considerable amount.

"It seems an interesting coincidence that approximately 1,200 people voted for Lee/Fore and about the same amount of people voted for this ballot measure," she said. "Obviously the same group of people are getting their own agenda passed."

Fred Hagen, a sponsor for the ballot measure that would discontinue fees, expressed faith in those who voted in favor of his measure, but was upset about the way voters received information. Hagen's measure lost 493 to 1661.

"I think that's pretty good considering the monopoly student government has on students," Hagen said.

Hagen also said the student government put out flyers against his measure and gave an incorrect account of what would really happen if the measure were to be approved.

"If they had to lie and misrepresent my ballot the way they did then I think (the result) was pretty good," he said. "If they would have talked about it honestly then people would have voted for it. I am pretty happy because there are at least 493 students who know how to think for themselves."

The Ozone Hole: Nature's Warning Shot

by Dr. Paul Engelking, University of Oregon
 Across from the EMU in Willamette Hall, Room 100

FREE ADMISSION

Friday, May 1, 7-8 p.m.

Dr. Engelking will explain the current scientific knowledge about the ozone hole and the possibility of extensive ozone depletion over the mid-latitudes. Following Dr. Engelking's seminar there will be tours and demonstrations in a laser lab, in a molecular modeling computer lab and in a lab with advanced technology microscopes.

Saving the environment shouldn't be a draining experience.

With just the flick of a wrist, you can save valuable energy and make a daily difference in our world.

Heating water is the second largest use of energy in the average American home. By using cold or warm water to wash your face, you'll save gallons of hot water from trickling down the drain.

By recycling a foot-tall stack of newspapers, you'll save the amount of energy you use in a week to take your daily hot shower.

Start making an impact today by using less hot water, and help ensure that the future of generations to come isn't all washed up. After all, we've got a ways to go before saving our earth is water under the bridge.
