year," said Eric Peterson, EMU Cultural Forum's regional concert coordinator. "We're bringing in big-name bands, such as the Unshakable Race, Renegade Saints and Local Hero as well as bands from around the country, from Georgia to Seattle."

"We want the Beer Gardens to be the place where students and faculty can come together to unwind after classes, have good beer at decent prices, catch some solid, talented musicians, make friends, relax and have a good time."

"The Beer Gardens is a unique social setting. It's free, it's right here on campus and we hope to bring everybody together," added Peterson.

The Beer Gardens happens every Friday from 4-7p.m., but you must be 21 and over with proof of I.D.

he said. "We make our money selling beer."

The layout of John Henry's includes a 30x18-foot dance/slam/mosh pit, three cafeteria-like tables, four or five round four-seat tables and a bar. Directly to the right of the stage is sort of a living room with three or four couches and a carpet.

"The coolest thing is that people can see the stage clearly from wherever they are in the bar," Hartnell said.

The beer prices are relatively cheap, especially if you get there early.

Hartnell said he hopes to draw people from all walks of life.

"We have our regular clientele who come here every night," he said. "But I don't care who comes here, as long as they aren't chasing people away."

The cover charge varies depending on who's playing but usually is between $3.00 to $5.00.

Tonight the club will feature Eugene salsa band Caliente, and Saturday The Squirrels and Portland's Drunk At Abi's will play.
