

A's down 3-2 after 6-2 victory

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays tried their darnedest to catch Rickey Henderson.

They tried to get him at first base, and threw the ball into right field. They tried to get him at third base, and threw it into left.

No, the Blue Jays never quite caught Henderson on Monday and they didn't catch up with Dave Stewart or the Oakland Athletics, either. Instead, the A's bounced back from a devastating defeat a day earlier and beat Toronto 6-2, closing their deficit in the AL playoffs to 3-2.

Rickey rattled the Blue Jays, all right. So much so that in the seventh inning, coach Gene Tenace was ejected when he bolted from the dugout, and had to be held back by manager Cito Gaston, to argue a checked swing on a 1-2 pitch.

Henderson watched the dispute with mild bemusement, and singled on the next pitch. He then left for a pinch runner because of a tight hamstring, and exited with a smile, and to a standing ovation.

Henderson, meanwhile, had plenty of support. Ruben Sierra hit a two-run homer in the first inning that began David Cone's demise and chased him with an RBI single in the fifth.

Jerry Browne, back in the lineup at third base because Carney Lansford was too banged up to play, went 4 for 4, drove in two runs and scored twice.

Henderson, Sierra and Browne had all eight of Oakland's hits.

Added up, it gave the A's a 6-1 lead after six innings. That was exactly the score by which they led Game 4 before Toronto stunned Dennis Eckersley and shocked Oakland for a 7-6 victory in 11 innings.

This time, the A's did not let it get away as Stewart improved to 6-0 lifetime in the playoffs. After getting a no-decision in Game 1, Oakland's big-game ace came back and allowed seven hits, walking three and striking out five.

Cone, starting on three days' rest for the first time this season, looked nothing like the pitcher who shut out Oakland for eight innings in Game 2.

Instead, he was in trouble from the start when Browne singled with one out and Sierra followed with a no-doubt drive into the right-field seats. It was Sierra's triple in Game 2, by the way, that ended Cone's evening.

Henderson, who showed signs of coming out of his week-long slump with three hits Sunday, kept it going in the third.

He drew a leadoff walk, and after Cone and catcher Pat Borders took turns trying to pick Henderson off, they paid. Cone bounced a pickoff throw past first base and Henderson easily scampered to third, setting up Browne's single.

In the fifth, after a two-base error by third baseman Kelly Gruber, Henderson laid down a rare bunt and beat it out for a single. Henderson bunted for a hit only once this season and does not like to do it — early in his career, he fouled a couple of bunts off his face, and has been reluctant ever since.

With runners on first and third, Henderson took off and Browne again singled. When right fielder Joe Carter foolishly tried to nail Henderson at third, the ball bounced to the retaining wall, allowing Henderson to score. Browne reached third on the play, and Sierra then singled up the middle through the drawn-in infield.

Cone waved at Sierra's hit, and sunk to his knees when it went through. Cone stayed down for a moment, and after Gaston relieved him, the Blue Jays were down for the rest of the game.

Monk breaks Largent's all-time pass record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Washington Redskins returned to Super Bowl form Monday night.

So did the Denver Broncos. And the Redskins gave a final bonus to Art Monk, who broke the NFL career receiving record when he caught three straight passes in the final quarter to give him 820 catches in his career.

That put an exclamation point on a 34-3 victory in which Mark Rypien finally stifled the boos at RFK Stadium by playing he did as MVP of last year's NFL title game. He was 16 of 26 for 245 yards and a 44-yard yard touchdown pass to Gary Clark and twice snuck in from 1 yard out for touchdowns.

The defense, led by Wilber Marshall, was equally impressive with five sacks and four turnovers that either accounted for or led to 17 of Washington's points. Overall, they limited the Broncos to 128 yards as Washington jumped to a 17-3 first-quarter lead and cruised.

"We had played good for a half before this," said defensive end Fred Stokes, who had three tackles, a sack and was involved in a play that led to Marshall's interception for a touchdown. "We needed to play a complete game. With John Elway, we had to. We knew if they were close in the fourth quarter they could get us."

They didn't, as the Redskins brought back old nightmares for Elway and the Broncos (4-2), who lost three Super Bowls in the late '80s by an average of 32 points — the exact margin of defeat the Redskins (3-2) administered in their 42-10 win in the 1987 game.

"The pass protection was not good," Denver coach Dan Reeves said. "John was getting hit every time. That's where we lost the game."

Added Elway: "There wasn't one area where they beat us, they beat us everywhere."
