

Soap star to suds with students

Antonio Sabato Jr., who plays Jagger Cates on General Hospital, will greet Oregon football fans Saturday at a tailgate party hosted by ABC in the parking lot of Autzen Stadium.

All students are invited to the party. Before the game, students can enter a sweepstakes drawing for a $1,000 and a behind-the-scenes tour for two at the ABC Daytime studios in New York. Sabato will announce the winners at halftime.

Sabato's appearance is part of ABC's seven-campus promotional tour, "In the Flesh," which is designed to attract college students to its soap operas.

"College students love to watch soaps in their spare time, so we wanted to bring our soaps and stars to major campuses this fall," said Regina DiMarino, director of marketing services for Daytime Programs, in a press release. "Our 'In the Flesh' tour is a unique way to reach hundreds of thousands of college students with a fun, memorable event. Judging by the response we've already had from the schools involved, this is an event that people will be talking about long after they've forgotten the score of the big game."

Other universities participating in the tour include Washington State, Purdue, Kent State and the University of Kansas. ABC's promotional actors include Walt Willey (Jackson Montgomery, All My Children), James DePaiva (Max Holden, One Life to (Live) and James Kiberd (Trevor Dillon, All My Children).

Antonio Sabato Jr.
