FOOTBALL

RIM football titles to be settled at Autzen

The RIM flag football championships will be this Sunday at Autzen Stadium.

The first game is at 11 a.m. with the Coed-Division II championship game, followed by the Coed-Division I game at about noon.

The men's championships will start at 1 p.m. with Division III, followed by Division II and ending with the Division I championship at about 3 p.m.

Admission is free to the games. The schedule of teams playing in the championships is posted in the RIM office in Gerlinger Hall.

PICKS

Pick: Oregon 35, UCLA 7.

picture because it plays Washington next weekend. Stranger things have happened ... but not this week.

Pick: Stanford 28, Washington State 10.

Oregon will try and keep its bowl hopes alive against UCLA. The Bruins are having one of their worst seasons in modern history and are 1-5 in the Pac-10. Their only win came against Oregon State, and they had to squeak that one out.

The Ducks are coming off a two-game winning streak and have won five of their last seven games. Everyone knows Oregon needs to win its next two games, and after Saturday, it will be one step toward a bowl game.

Oregon State faces Washington in Seattle. The Huskies are coming off their first loss in two years and will no doubt be looking to take it out on the Beavers. Billy Joe Hobert was kicked off the team this week and that could cause some turmoil within the Husky team.

Face it, Oregon State is screwed.

Pick: Washington 42, Oregon State 6.

California and Arizona State will partake in the crummy game of the week. It doesn't really matter who wins this, so we won't spend anymore time on it.

Pick: California 17, Arizona State 17.
