

CIVIL WAR

Oregon had the ball in Oregon State territory only twice in the second half, and both drives ended without a point. The first drive ended when running back Ricky Whittle fumbled on the Beavers' 16-yard line. The only other time the Ducks penetrated Oregon State territory the drive resulted in a muffed fake field goal.

In the second half, the Beavers put in quarterback Ian Shields, replacing starter Mark Olford, who led the offense to 21 yards total offense in the first half. Shields, who led the Beavers to a 14-3 victory over the Ducks a year ago, came in and instantly moved the ball.

His runs of 21 and 13 yards put the Beavers in Oregon territory, but penalties stalled the drive. In all, Oregon State was penalized for 41 yards during the march.

The most costly play came when running back Dwayne Owens was flagged for a personal foul and ejected for rumbling with Oregon linebacker Joe Farwell. The penalty came after the Beavers had driven to the Ducks' 29-yard line.

"It was frustrating in the third quarter with all the penalties," Shields said. "We couldn't get anything going. I don't know if it had anything to do with the intensity or what, but we let it get away."

Oregon was clearly dominating the game — at least on defense — but could not put away the Beavers. Oregon State had one last chance late in the fourth quarter to at least tie the game, when the Beavers took over the ball after a punt at Oregon's 42-yard line.

The Beavers, who have used trick plays with relative success this season, tried to run the "fumblerooskie" for the second time in the game. And, for the second time in the game, the play fell flat.

Oregon State guard Fletcher Keister picked up the ball, was promptly leveled by Oregon lineman Jeff Cummins and fumbled. Oregon recovered, and the rest of the Beavers' cheering section cleared out.

"Someone got their hand on the ball from the side," a tearful Keister said. "I don't know who it was. I never saw it."

The Oregon players said they had been practicing all week to defend the play.

"I saw the center hit the ground, and all week the coaches have been telling us that is a sign of the fumblerooskie," Farwell said. "Then I saw this big lumbering guy get up and start running. The fumble was kind of a fitting end to a game like this."

The Ducks again proved the toughness of their defense by holding the Beavers to 110 yards in total offense and only 88 yards rushing. Oregon State came into the game ranked 11th in the nation in rushing.
