Arkansas Baptist plays doubleheader — maybe

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Question: Who can play four games in three states on two nights. Answer: Arkansas Baptist.

Nobody's quite sure about Arkansas Baptist's season record. Saturday night, the Buffaloes were 0-2 in Texas and Oklahoma. On Nov. 20, they were 0-2 in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Head coach Arcell Marks and the Buffaloes lost to Prairie View A&M 90-76 Saturday night. The same night, a man who said he was Arkansas Baptist athletic director Bobby Carey coached Arkansas Baptist to a 148-78 loss against Oklahoma Baptist University.

Marks called in sick on Nov. 20. He told George Biggs, athletic director, he wasn't feeling well and would be unable to take the team to Conway to play Hendrix College. An assistant coach, Stanza Montgomery, made the trip. Biggs drove the 30 miles northwest of Little Rock to watch. The Buffaloes lost, 78-61.

But another Arkansas Baptist team lost 106-78 the same night to Oklahoma Baptist University at Shawnee, Okla. Marks was the coach.

"I just know that I allocated money to go to Hendrix," Biggs said. "I went with the assistant coach because Coach Marks said he was feeling ill."

The names of four Arkansas Baptist players showed up in both box scores on Saturday.

Three names appeared in both boxes on Nov. 20.

Marks has not been questioned about the Nov. 20 game, Arkansas Baptist president W.T. Keaton said Tuesday. Marks denied any knowledge of a team playing at Oklahoma City University on Saturday, Keaton said.

Marks was unavailable for comment Tuesday. He was said to be on the road to Bolivar, Mo., where Arkansas Baptist was scheduled to play Southwest Baptist University Tuesday night.

Arkansas Baptist was paid $1,200 for the game at Oklahoma City University, according to OCU coach Win Case. A check was given to the man who coached the team, though he had asked for cash, Case said.

Marks was given a check for $1,250 for the game last month at Oklahoma Baptist.

Arkansas Baptist University has received no money from either game, Keaton said.

"The check has cleared," said Norris Russell, athletic director at Oklahoma Baptist.

"I can tell you from past experience that they have asked for cash, but this time he did not," Norris said. "But he did ask where he could cash the check. I told him the bank would be open in the morning."

Norris said he assumed the team used the money for expenses.
