Because Valentine's Day is the day for lovers, lingerie has become a very popular gift.

Be it heart-decorated panties, sleep shirts decorated with big teddy bears, or silk boxer shorts for the men; the local lingerie departments and stores are geared-up for the big day.

"I buy a new teddy for my girlfriend every year at this time. She loves them, and so do I," said student Joel Larabee.

Although many men do enjoy giving their sweethearts lingerie for Valentine's Day, they don't especially enjoy the shopping around part.

"I feel like some kind of a pervert walking into a lingerie store with a bunch of women in there looking at me," said student

Bryan Vereschagin. "It's not just walking in and paying, you have to stay in there and shop to pick things out."

For this reason, one local lingerie shop, Feminine Fancies, puts on an annual fashion show for men only. They have two shows, Feb. 9 and Feb. 11, where they offer champagne throughout the fashion show entertainment. This has become a 13-year tradition at the store.

Not all men are afraid of lingerie shops.

"During Christmas and Valentine's Day, we get as many or more men shoppers as we do women shoppers," said Patricia from Feminine Fancies.

They really get into the spirit of Valentine's Day. The fashion parties give men who cannot figure out the correct size, or would like to see what their potential gift looks like on, to get the assistance they need. Forty to 50 men show up for each party.

Besides the normal red and white decorated lingerie or heart-designed boxer shorts, Feminine Fancies has some special gift ideas. The store has heart-shaped hanging ornaments and mugs that can be filled with bubble bath or massage oil.

It also sells some special little Valentine's trolls. The female has on a red padded bra and a red with black lace teddy, and the male wears heart-decorated boxer shorts. Gift wrapping is complimentary for all Valentine purchases.
