

Bill could direct sex shop locations

SALEM (AP) — Local governments could keep adult-oriented sex businesses away from schools and residential areas under a proposal introduced Wednesday by a legislator from Gresham.

Democratic Rep. Sharon Wylie said local officials are powerless to deal with such establishments as adult book stores and theaters because of state court rulings on constitutional free speech rights.

Gresham citizens fought two adult businesses only to learn they couldn't restrict their locations, she said.

Wylie drafted a proposed constitutional amendment that would allow cities and counties to use zoning ordinances to forbid adult-oriented businesses within 1,400 feet of schools or residential neighborhoods.

"My intent is to give Oregon communities the right and the authority to keep adult entertainment businesses away from our schools and out of our neighborhoods," Wylie said at a news conference.

"To do this, Oregon voters must agree that communities have a right to determine the quality of their environment," she said.

If approved by the Legislature, HJR57 would be on the ballot for the November 1994 general election.

She also introduced a related bill that would expand state nuisance laws to include adult businesses.

The measure, HB3495, would allow local governments to shut down a business if a pattern of disruption occurred over a one-year period.

"We can't stop pornography," Wylie said. "My bills will make sure that Oregon communities can keep them away from their schools and out of their back yards."

CUTS

will have to cut an additional 26 positions and another $2.4 million out of its 1993-95 budget in early April. Cumulatively, this means a loss of 296 positions and $15.6 million since Measure 5 passed in November 1990.

Williams said the reason for announcing some of the 1993-95 biennium's cuts now is to give the people affected time to make other plans.

"We know that real people are being affected and lives being changed," Brand said.

The rest of round two's cuts will likely be made in early April, Williams said. By then, the University should have a better estimate of its 1993-95 budget, he said.

Brand said the cuts come at a time when the state needs higher education the most. The number of high school graduates in Oregon is increasing, he said, but the University's enrollment caps and higher tuition will keep them from getting a higher education.

The entire state suffers as a result, Brand said. The economy depends on a well-educated work force to operate businesses' technology, he said.

But this session's Legislature will probably not give higher education any more funds, Brand said.

"We are, without question, headed in the wrong direction," Brand said.

The first, and completed, round of Measure 5, which affects the 1991-93 biennium, eliminated 91 positions in the College of Education, the speech program and other areas.
