

Adventure Starts Here

The world gets smaller every year. U.S. students are dancing to Latin music in a park in China. Selling ads to an Iranian bank for a British publication. Listening to Bob Dylan at an Italian restaurant in Finland.

It gets easier all the time to head overseas and throw yourself into another culture, learning about the rest of the world — and about yourself — and having a blast at the same time. Best of all, you don't need much money for this kind of education.

Student Travels can help you get started. We'll show you how to get through Europe on the cheap, how to get a job overseas and how to get everything in order before you go, from passport to student identity card to rail pass. This magazine comes to you courtesy of the Council on International Educational Exchange and Council Travel. CIEE has programs in 33 countries on six continents, and helps thousands of students find opportunities and adventure overseas. Through CIEE, you can work, study, volunteer or just plain travel. Council Travel, part of CIEE, is the travel agency for students. With 43 offices in the U.S., it has discount air fares, rail passes and a bundle of other services to get you going.

So stop wasting your time on this page and jump right into the meal of the magazine. Then jump right into another culture and watch yourself grow. ☺

Travel Free! Winners

In the Fall 1992 issue of Student Travels, Council Travel sponsored a Travel Free! giveaway. All you had to do was fill out the coupon and mail it in, and loads of you did just that. The top winners were:

First Prize — M. Riordan of Cal-Berkeley, who won two round-trip tickets to London, two Britrail passes and two American Youth Hostel memberships.

Second Prize — Andrew Walkley of the University of Miami (Florida), who won two round-trip tickets to Costa Rica and two American Youth Hostel memberships.
