

Ducks look to spoil OSU tourney hopes

The Oregon men's basketball team hopes to close out the season on a good note as it starts a season-ending three-game homestand Saturday night at 7:00 against Oregon State.

The Ducks are coming off two losses to the Arizona schools last weekend and remain in the cellar of the Pacific-10 Conference with a 2-13 record.

Oregon can rid the Beavers of any postseason hopes with a win. Oregon State has lost eight of its past 10 games, and a loss to the Ducks will assure it a losing record, making the Beavers ineligible for an NIT berth.

Clyde Jordan, Johnnie Reece and Andre Collier are all expected to play for the Ducks Saturday after being briefly suspended from the team for breaking curfew last weekend.
