Women drop another to Stanford

The good news for the Oregon women's basketball team is that there is only one game left in the 1992-93 season.

The bad news is the Ducks were blown out 86-52 by eighth-ranked Stanford Thursday night in Palo Alto, Calif.

The Cardinal (24-5, 14-3) have been led all season by seniors Val Whiting and Molly Goodenbour, but their youth took over against the Ducks. Junior Christy Hedgpeth led Stanford with 17 points, while sophomore Anita Kaplan and freshman Bobbie Kelsey added 16 and 15 points, respectively.

Debbie Sporcich led the Ducks with 24 points and eight rebounds, and broke out of a mini-shooting slump by making ten out of 14 shots from the field. The rest of the Duck squad connected on only ten out of 44 shots.

The Ducks shot a horrible 21 percent from three-point range, connecting on only four of 24 shots from behind the arc. Jessica Schutt and Karen Healea added eight points apiece for the Ducks.

Stanford jumped on the Ducks early with a 17-1 run to start the game, while Oregon waited for 6 minutes and 50 seconds before making its first field goal.
