STREETWISE

QUESTION:

What Question(s) would you like to see in Streetwise next term?

"Hemp. Why aren't we using it more?"

JUSTIN HEACY
sophomore, business

"Geo-graphy questions, like where is...?"

JEREMY SCHOLL
senior, journalism

"More of those crazy, kooky questions you have already been asking."

JEN SWINEHART
senior, political science

"More questions about important things on campus. Not questions about Frog's vacation."

JACKIE PAZ
freshman, undeclared

"Questions about Measure 5 and other political issues. Students don't get asked political questions enough."

LORETTA LaMAR
third-year law student

"Interesting questions. Most of the time the answers are stupid, and sometimes your questions are stupid - like asking about Brand's mustache."

ANGELICA CAMACHO
grad. spanish literature

coming a few times a week ever since she can remember. Trudi Richmond has been feeding the ducks and geese since Jimmy Carter's administration. Richmond said it doesn't really occur to her not to come.

"It gets harder every time," she said, "but I worry that everybody else has given up."

However, just as Richmond continues her old ritual, new ones are being born. Tracey and Kirby Miner take their six-month-old son, Chase, to the millrace whenever he has a doctor's appointment. Chase watches with a befuddled look on his face as the birds swarm around the family.

Kirby said the ducks have been here as long as he can remember, and he hopes the family can make its millrace visit a new tradition.
