IFC no-shows prompt third postponement

By Chester Allen
Oregon Daily Emerald

For the second time this week, the Incidental Fee Committee canceled budget hearings because not enough committee members attended the meeting.

Committee members Lydia Lerma, Jose Balderas and Efreem Mehretab did not show up for the meeting, leaving the committee one member short of forming a legal quorum.

Committee member Zoe Pargot has verbally announced her resignation and did not attend the meeting.

Four of the seven members of the committee must be present to legally conduct any hearings or business, according to the Incidental Fee Committee rules.

Committee members Ed Carson, Anne Wagoner and Steve Masat attended the hearing and fielded questions from people who questioned some committee members' commitment to serving the University.

The EMU had its budget hearing canceled for the third time this year, and EMU staff and board members present at the meeting wondered when the committee would finally hear its $1.8 million budget.

"Just about the whole EMU staff is here for the third time in a row," said EMU Director Dusty Miller. "We want to field your questions about our budget and get about doing what we have to do."

EMU Board of Directors Chairman Joe Grube said the commit-

'I think the IFC can get its act together.'

ASUO finance coordinator

tee's recent attendance problems were a strong argument for University President Myles Brand's recent proposal to remove the committee from the EMU budget process.

ASUO Finance Coordinator Neil Sunnell urged the groups awaiting hearings to be patient and work closely with the committee to speed future budget hearings.

"I think the IFC can get its act together," Sunnell said.

Committee member Anne Wagoner apologized to the groups whose hearings were canceled and expressed frustration with the absent members.

"Members have known we have meetings on Monday and Thursday since January," Wagoner said. "If they're not here, they should be held responsible."

Because of the recent hearing cancellations, the committee has fallen behind its schedule and may have to arrange additional meetings to finish allocating budgets by its May 24 deadline, Masat said.

Masat said previous rescheduling has forced the the committee to hear six or seven budgets during its remaining regular meetings.
