SELMAN

and the training techniques of her new coach, Sally Harmon.

"I wasn't consistent last year," Selman said. "But now I feel stronger than I ever did in my past."

Selman began her "throwing career" in southern California youth track meets, where she competed in the softball toss. When she graduated to the real track implements, she tried the shotput but found there was very little throwing involved. That's when her parents made the life-altering choice of a javelin as a Christmas gift.

Because there is no high school javelin event in California, Selman was restricted to TAC meets for javelin competition.

"I can understand why people think the javelin is dangerous and shouldn't be in high school," Selman said. Selman said she enjoys the team emphasis at Oregon.

"At USC, we had some outstanding individuals, but we didn't have a strong team," Selman said. "It's fun now to be at a more team-oriented school which has a chance to win Pac-10's and place at nationals."

Selman said if she were able to place in the top eight at the NCAA meet, she would be able to finally reach a long-time goal.

"Becoming a four-time all-American has been a big goal for me," Selman said. "People sometimes expect me to do certain things, but I don't feel any extra outside pressure. The only pressure I feel is the pressure I put on myself."
