Taylor's College Side Inn has undergone many changes in the past few years but still provides a great daytime and nighttime hangout for University students.

Taylor's College Side Inn is the only bar I go to," said college freshman Maile DeLaura. She and many other Taylor's regulars have seen a lot of changes in Taylor's during this school year. DeFrisco's restaurant bought Taylor's two years ago and wanted to change the bar from a smokey blues venue into a place for the college students to go for entertainment. In an attempt to bring back the college crowd, the 13th Avenue bar started serving breakfast and lunch, allowing minors to use Taylor's as well. It also opened up the patio side window to offer a quick stop espresso or cup of coffee. "Those Taylor's lattes have kept me awake through the worst of classes," said junior Casey Gamba. The kitchen and menu have expanded greatly this year. Taylor's now has a terrific breakfast special for $1.99. For two dollars customers have their choice of french toast with sausage or bacon; biscuits and gravy with home fries; or two eggs, home fries, toast and bacon or sausage. If people find themselves in a bind and are searching for a place to take their date for some breakfast, Taylor's can feed two people, including a tip for a mere $5.00. Recently with the added food menu, Taylor's has become more of a daytime bar. Students come in to sit, drink coffee and read the paper or catch up on some studying. "I definitely study better with a pitcher in front of me," said university senior Chris Loughner. "I come in, drink a few beers while I read, then, when I start to have trouble understanding what I'm reading, I know its time to go." Just because the day business of Taylor's has been a focus to its new owners, this does not mean that it has lost its night life. For instance, why would anyone dare miss Karaoke night on Tuesday?
