

Lifestyles

Who's got time for idyllic strolls across campus? College students in 1992-93 found themselves plummeting into a campus reality rife with concerns about equal rights, funding for higher education and activists vying to make their voices rise above the din.

Whether through marches, building takeovers, nude-ins or a little relaxation just to escape for a while, students sought to make their mark while balancing academic concerns with future plans and the search for self with the bonding of community.

And to many of those who muddled through and received their diplomas, it was on to jobs with name tags.

Entertainment

Congratulations, you're a target market. From Singles to Class of '96 to that whole Seattle thing, this was the year Hollywood discovered you and your generation.

It was also the year alternative became mainstream. The music revolution of the '90s wasn't just televised; it was commercialized. Bands like the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Nirvana and Pearl Jam made enough money to buy a lifetime of flannel shirts.

Lollapalooza '92 rolled and raved for universal awareness, progressive attitudes and, oh yeah, music.

And of course, for every generation, there is a... Garth.

DAVE BERGMAN, U. OF MIAMI
GRAND PRIZE WINNER: Graduates at the U. of Miami celebrate their passage into the "real world." Unfortunately, the real world doesn't hold the same promise for today's graduates that it once did.

STAR LYNN ROTH, U. OF ILLINOIS, CHICAGO
GRAND PRIZE WINNER: Anthony and Flea of the Red Hot Chili Peppers perform at Lollapalooza '92.

DAVID MOSER, MEMPHIS STATE U.
 A member of the Memphis State U. Pompon Squad works out during the MSU health and fitness week.

MARK STILLMAN, U. OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY
 A nude-in at the U. of California, Berkeley.

ARISSA BETHMOOR, U. OF CALIFORNIA, BERKELEY
 Raging at the UC, Berkeley Sigma Kappa Sorority.

ANDY DARLINGTON, PURDUE U.
 Purdue U. students hang out in the Grand Canyon.

NORM TRIGOBOFF, STATE U. OF NEW YORK, COLLEGE AT CORTLAND
 Students at the State U. of New York, College at Cortland, protest the rising costs of education.

KIMBERLE WETHINGTON, NORTHERN ILLINOIS U.
 Eddie Vedder of Pearl Jam at Lollapalooza '92 at Alpine Valley, Wisc.: Lots o' hair, lots o' flannel, lots o' guitar.

CRAIG HACKER, KANSAS STATE U.
 Garth Brooks pours his hat and soul into a show at Kansas State U.

ALEXANDRIA ZYLSTRA, U. OF MISSOURI
 BRIAN HANNAN, THE OHIO STATE U.
 Right: Members of The Ohio State U. marching band serenade the fans during the Ohio State/Michigan game.

See the best of the best from our readers — Page 31