The Trenchcoats' zany "a cappella extraordinaire" style has amused and entertained Northwesterners for the past five years.

Trenchcoats ready to amuse folks

Tired of the type of music that relies on synthesizers, voice enhancers and special effects to produce any sort of entertainment worth listening to?

If so, Trenchcoats may be just what you're looking for. This Seattle-based group relies solely on the chemistry of its four voices ranging from tenor to bass to produce a sound that can compete with any of the music industry's top Michael Jackson wannabes.

The Trenchcoats are a high energy, exciting, well choreographed group, who sometimes add comedy to their performances. Their list of hits at the Western Washington fair included "Louie, Louie," country standard "Elvira," and a little bit of romance with the Righteous Brothers' "You Lost That Loving Feeling."

And for those of you who still can't get enough rap, a little Vanilla Ice version of the all-time favorite "Jingle Bells" was performed. That's not all, the Trenchcoats also threw in some amusing choreography, some slick costumes and, of course, a George Bush imitation.

So if it's diversity in entertainment you want, you can find it with the Trenchcoats. You won't see any flashing lights or smoke bombs, but that doesn't stop audiences from giving them rave reviews.

The Trenchcoats' performance at an office Christmas dinner produced this reaction. "The Trenchcoats' light-hearted comedy, combined with their exceptional music talent, made what has traditionally been a cut-and-dry event, an exceptional party that lasted into the wee hours of the night," said Maret Bradshaw of Chevron U.S.A. Inc.

Central Washington University was also thrilled with the Trenchcoats.

"I cannot emphasize enough how everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The response of the audience was full of compliments and the upmost praise," said Gina Gilbert, CWU Performing Arts Coordinator.

The Trenchcoats consist of four witty and charming singers from the Seattle area: Joe Mele, tenor; Doug Wisness, baritone; Kerry Dahlen, bass; and Jamie Diveney, tenor.
