IFC pays bad debts for last year's LGBA

By Edward Klopfenstein
Oregon Daily Emerald

The Incidental Fee Committee paid $194 in bad debts for the Lesbian Gay and Bisexual Alliance Wednesday, debt carried over from alleged mismanagement by last year's LGBA directors.

Co-directors Jodi Mai and Spencer de Mille originally asked for $529 to pay for ads, videos and the LGBA's contribution to a dance held last April, but were given money to pay for just one bill.

"What happened here was a program that overspent," said Eric Bowen, ASUO president, who attended last night's meeting. "The LGBA made a commitment (with the companies) and never contacted the ASUO to find out if there were funds available."

"The last directors left the accounts a mess," said Mai.

The debts were made by former co-directors Sarah Ross and Troy Shields, who left their positions last June, said the current LGBA officers. Mai and de Mille became directors in September.

"We're not the only student group with this problem (of an overdrawn account)," said de Mille.

He said he and Mai were often told opposing information about how to keep their accounts and pay expenses since taking the jobs. One official was surprised, he said, when de Mille and Mai said they wanted to keep another set of ledgers in the LGBA office.

The co-directors want to see a form of accountability with all directors under ASUO auspices because they don't believe one exists, de Mille said.

The original $529 came from $196 for a Yellow Pages ad, $193 to the Lavender Network for the LGBA's part in a co-sponsored dance, and $140 for tapes from Network Q. The network produces news videos on gay issues each month. The Lavender Network is a statewide gay newspaper based in Eugene.

The IFC shaved $126 because it represented bills due from September.

Chairman Jian Liu motioned to pay the Lavender Network bill out of IFC surplus funds. Committee member Jack Oroczo seconded the motion.

"If you come up short for some super empowering thing, then come up (to the IFC) in the future. We're not going to dock you for this," said Lyons.
