

Fair gives students focus

"What do you want to be when you grow up?"

Many college students recall that question from their youth, and now that they are almost "grown up," the question returns to haunt them once again. Students may finally find the answer, or at least a step in the right direction to finding the answer, at the University Career and Intern Fair.

Sponsored by the Career Planning and Placement Service, the fair is specifically designed for those who are unsure about their future. The fair began Oct. 27, and continues through today, Oct. 28, from 12 to 4 p.m. at the EMU.

Students who attend the fair will be able to learn about career and internship opportunities and get an idea of what the world of work is all about by talking to company representatives from over 60 organizations, looking through their brochures, or watching their videos.

The fair is beneficial for both attendants and representatives, as many companies are or will be recruiting for employment and internships. One such company is Meier and Frank, which is looking for students interested in its executive training program this summer, for which interviews will be held next term, and summer internships.

In conjunction with the fair, specific companies will hold informal informational sessions about who they are and what they do. Sessions today will be held by Teach America, from 11 a.m. to noon in the EMU Oak Room; Wallace Computer Services from 4:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the EMU Century Room F; Battelle Pacific NW Labs from 5 to 6 p.m. at 221 Hendricks; and Meier and Frank from 6 to 7 p.m. in the EMU Walnut Room.

Street sale of joke books brings Frog to court again

By Susanne Steffens
Oregon Daily Emerald

On Friday, one of the University area's most famous residents is going to court.

David Henry Miller, better known as "Frog," has been selling his joke books without a license on East 13th Avenue since 1986, which has brought him many tickets and court cases.

Two years ago, the city of Eugene used an ordinance to fine Frog, which the Oregon Court of Appeals ruled as unconstitutional last April. The city then appealed to the Oregon Supreme Court, and this Friday the court will be set in Portland.

"We are going to have an open court at Lincoln High School, which is a joke in itself," Frog said, who, with his attorney Rebecca Davis, will arrive early in Portland Friday morning. "We will definitely win, because we have a good strong constitutional case, and if we lose, we will appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States."

The ordinance Frog violated states that it is an offense to sell merchandise on the sidewalks, and that sidewalk vending licenses can only be issued for the sale of food, beverages, flowers or balloons.

Frog does not understand why the sale of joke books is any different than the sale of these permitted items, and claims he is not causing any harm by standing around the University Bookstore.

"Most people like me and feel that I'm a part of the environment here," he said.

Frog started to get tickets in 1990, when people who worked in stores nearby began to complain that Frog was unfair competition because he wasn't paying the amount of money that they did. Since then the city has been trying to remove him from the street, and Frog is angry about all of the money that has been spent.

"The city has wasted $50,000 prosecuting me, and this money could have been used for a homeless center instead," he said.

POLICE BEAT

The following incidents were reported to the University Office of Public Safety and the Eugene police department Oct. 19-27.

- A theft of a $108 parking permit sticker was reported stolen from campus Oct. 19.
- A female student reported her fanny pack stolen from Huestis Hall on the 1400 block of East 13th Avenue Oct. 19. The student left the pack for a couple of minutes and found it was gone with her wallet, checkbook, cash and credit cards when returning. The lost items were worth $135.
- A student reported a $450 bicycle stolen on the 900 block of Hilyard Street Oct. 21.
- Criminal Mischief II was reported on the 700 block of Pearl Street Oct. 22. A police sergeant found his vehicle with spit on the hood, trunk and driver's side of the vehicle. On the driver's side window, the suspect had spelled out the word "pig" with spit, and a fresh key-type scratch was found on the passenger door.
- A student reported the back wheel on his bike stolen on the 1000 block of Patterson Street Oct. 22. The wheel was worth $150.
- A 33-year-old male was arrested for burglary on the 1800 block of Harris Street Oct. 22. According to police reports, the suspect had been trespassing around the area where his ex-girlfriend was living. After a while, he forced himself into the apartment where she was living and they got into a fight.
- Pi Kappa Alpha was cited for noise disturbance on the 1800 block of University Street Oct. 23.
- A Lane Community College student was cited for false identification on the 500 block of East 13th Avenue Oct. 23.
- A student was cited for noise disturbance on 20th Avenue and Hilyard Street Oct. 23.
- A male student was arrested for assaulting a female student at the University Inn Oct. 23. According to police reports, the student was intoxicated, and started flirting with the woman when they stood in the elevator. The woman tried to push him away as he got closer, but he grabbed her and pushed her against the wall. Apparently he was angry because she touched him, and held both his hands around her throat.

- A student was cited for nine counts of false swearing on the 500 block of East 18th Avenue Oct. 23. According to police reports, the student had falsified applications to get a hold of 168 gallons of beer, which he sold to student parties.
 - A 39-year-old male transient was arrested for criminal trespass on the 1000 block of Patterson Street Oct. 25.
 - A student reported the handlebars on a bike stolen from 11th Avenue and Patterson Street Oct. 25.
 - A 20-year-old male student was arrested for burglary and kidnapping on the 700 block of East 16th Avenue Oct. 25. According to police reports, the student arrived at his ex-girlfriend's residence and tried to force himself into her apartment by kicking in the door. In his anger, he started kicking in some other doors belonging to the neighbors.
- The suspect managed to gain entry to one of the apartments, found his girlfriend and grabbed her by the hair out onto the street. When the police arrived, the suspect admitted what he had done and was taken into custody.
- An 18-year-old male was cited for shoplifting at the University Bookstore Oct. 25. According to police reports, he stole a key chain and a pen.
 - A 19-year-old female student reported her bike tires and wheels stolen from Walton Complex on the 1500 block of East 15th Avenue Oct. 25. According to police reports, the frame was cut with a saw to remove the rear tire.
 - A 21-year-old student reported a burglary from the 1600 block of Patterson Street Oct. 25. According to police reports, a piece of wood was thrown through the glass portion of the back door, and then the door was unlocked and entered. A typewriter, a computer, a computer monitor and two blankets were stolen. The stolen items amounted to $2,250.
