Bank of America to replace U-Bank ATM in EMU

By Jade Chan

Students who use the U-Bank automatic teller in the EMU by the Fishbowl may have noticed a slight inconvenience in obtaining cash, especially because the machine is gone.

Because of an expired lease contract at the end of October, U.S. Bank's U-Bank machine is no longer in service at the EMU.

Bank of America's Versateller will operate in its place, starting Tuesday, Nov. 16.

Mary Lou Mansfield, secretary to the director of the EMU, hopes the transition will not inconvenience students and believes the only inconvenience will be the time it takes to change machines. She is sure the new machine will give the "same or better service" than the old machine.

However, some students who do not bank at Bank of America may be inconvenienced by service charges from their banks when they use the new ATM.

In the meantime, students who usually use the EMU U-Bank can use the U-Lane-O ATM in the EMU or other ATMs on or near campus, including ones at the University Bookstore and the U.S. Bank branch on 13th Avenue and Alder Street.
