

POLICE BEAT

The following incidents were reported to the University Office of Public Safety and the Eugene police department Nov. 2-9.

- A student reported a $500 camera stolen from the 1600 block of Alder Street Nov. 3. According to police reports, the camera was stored in a closet of a common-area of a student housing co-op, which numerous unknown people have access to.

- A 22-year-old female was arrested for interfering with a police officer on the 2100 block of Alder Street Nov. 3. According to police reports, the female tried to prevent him from arresting her friend and after several warnings, she was arrested.

- A criminal mischief was reported from Safeway on 18th Avenue and Pearl Street Nov. 4. According to police reports, graffiti was sprayed outside on the wall, causing $200 worth of damage.

- A 37-year-old male was arrested for disorderly conduct on the 1300 block of Mill Street Nov. 4. According to police reports, the male was jumping in the middle of the road, stopping cars and yelling. An officer tried to make him leave the street, but the male just screamed "fuck off." In the end, the officer had to go into the road and lift him away.

- An 18-year-old student reported his bike stolen from the 1300 block of Agate Street Nov. 4. According to police reports, the student locked his bike at Watson Hall with a cable lock Nov. 2. When he returned he found his bike stolen, which was worth $650.

- A 20-year-old male student reported his backpack stolen from Esslinger gym on the 1500 block of University Street Nov. 4. According to police reports, the student had his backpack unwatched while playing basketball. There were eight to 12 people in the gym at the time. The backpack contained cloths and school material, together worth $240.

- A 23-year-old male student reported a visa card Firstbank stolen on the 1000 block of Alder Street Nov. 4. According to police reports, the student had been advised by the credit card center that a visa card had been mailed to his location, but the student had moved from the address prior to the mailing of the card. Unknown people may have removed the card from the mailbox at the location.

- Two University students were cited for shoplifting at the University Bookstore Nov. 5. According to police reports, the students stole 18 pens from the pen display, which were worth more than $40. The students have taken several pens from the store recently, explaining that "they use pens a lot, and don't have pens."

- An 18-year-old female student was taken in for a mental evaluation at Sacred Heart General Hospital Nov. 5. According to police reports, she had been threatening to commit suicide on several occasions.

- An acquaintance rape was reported Nov. 6. According to police reports, a 21-year-old female student was having her 31-year-old male friend over at one of the student housing complexes. They were together for the evening, and the friend raped her sometime during this period. The suspect is charged with rape in the first degree, and the case is under investigation. The suspect is not a student.

- Three male University students were cited the morning of Nov. 7 for throwing water balloons at the front of a fire engine that was driving down Agate Street.

Fire Capt. Ernie Connelly, who was on duty, said the fire engine was returning from a call and was stopping near 15th Avenue to let the three students cross the street. Suddenly the firefighters saw the students throwing something toward the truck, which they later found out were water balloons containing shaving cream.

The balloons made a terrific noise and the firefighters ran out of the truck, and started to chase the students, who were trying to get away. With the help of campus security, the students were caught, and they all agreed they had acted stupidly. According to police reports, the three males had been throwing the balloons at each other around the area of the dorms and impulsively threw them at the fire truck.

Connelly said he was pleased no damage was done to the truck, but he was surprised about the students' actions.

"The firefighters are out there to help, not to be targets of violence," he said.

strict budget as early as next week.

"We're going to lose $12 million in the next two years," said Kathryn Dysart, director of public affairs for 4J School District. "The (school) board and budget committee will meet Monday night to discuss what programs to cut."

The school board meeting, which is open to the public, will be at 7 p.m. Monday at 200 N. Monroe St.

In the 1993-94 school district budget, $10.8 million was cut by teams of school administrators, staff and parents. Unless replacement revenue is found in 1994-95, $3 million or more will have to be trimmed, and in the following year, another $8 million or more will be cut from the budget.

"(The lack of a sales tax) will have a drastic effect because within the next two years we will experience a 25-percent reduction in funding," said Chuck Vaughn, co-principal of South Eugene High School. "That's a huge reduction. Some very difficult decisions about staff and programs will have to be made."

If Measure 5 is fully implemented and no replacement revenue is found, 4J's resources will drop from $4,580 per pupil in 1992-93 to $3,783 in 1995-96.

achieves the goals we face as an institution in the area of productivity," Boren said. "There is no magic motion. We need to take a number of small steps, that if properly adjudicated will add up to total change."

The change comes one week after the University Assembly voted to throw out the cluster system in favor of a 16-credit requirement that covers science, social science and humanities.

In other business, the Senate voted to change the deadlines for adding and dropping classes during the first weeks of each academic term.
