

On the rocks

WILSON CHAN for the Emerald
Climbing enthusiast Ian Wagner works his way through the rocks at Skinner Butte.

ET ALS

MEETINGS

Students for Kitzhaber will gather for an informational meeting today at 3:30 p.m. in the EMU Ballroom Lobby. For more information, call 465-3274.

MISCELLANEOUS

American Academic Norms will be the subject of a discussion for international students today at 2:30 p.m. in EMU Ben Linder Room. Germanic Languages Department will present Tanjuska and the 7 Devils, a 1993 Finnish documentary film, tonight at 8 p.m. in 115 Pacific. For more information, call 346-4054.

Deadline for submitting Et Als to the Emerald front desk, 300 EMU, is noon the day before publication. Et Als run the day of the event unless the event takes place before noon.

Meet Oregon's Newest State Senator!! Senator Peter Sorenson

Senator Peter Sorenson invites you to meet with him during a Townhall meeting in Senate District 20.

From 10:30 a.m. to 12:00 p.m., Tuesday, November 16, 1993, Erb Memorial Student Union, Maple Room, U of O.

Please plan to attend this Townhall meeting where you can meet Senator Peter Sorenson and share your views on the "State of the State."

LETTER PERFECT Graphics

• TYPESETTING • PASTE-UP • LAYOUT • DESIGN • CONSULTATION • CAMERA •
SUITE 300 ERB MEMORIAL UNION 346-4381 9:00-5:00 M-F

Career fair to feature speaker

By Jenni Stone
For the Oregon Daily Emerald

The dean of the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia, who served in the Reagan and Bush administrations, will be the keynote minority speaker at the Minority Graduate Career Fair hosted by the University law school Saturday.

Dr. Bonnie Guiton holds numerous awards and honors, including the National Women's Economic Alliance Foundation 1992 Directors Choice Award and the National Coalition of 100 Black Women's CANDACE Award. Guiton will give her address at the conclusion of the fair.

Guiton served under President George Bush as special adviser for consumer affairs and director of the United States Office of Consumer Affairs. For President Ronald Reagan, she served as Assistant Secretary in the U.S. Department of Education and vice chairwoman of the U.S. Postal Rate Commission.

"It's amazing, everything she's done," said Jane Gordon, assistant dean of the University School of Law.

Gordon, who is in charge of and helped plan the minority conference, said the fair is aimed at people of color in high school, college, or even those thinking about changing careers.

Workshops will be offered by the University's graduate programs and departments. In addition, panels of professionals from different fields will share their educational and occupational experiences.

"I personally think it's never too early to start thinking about these things," said Shawn Burnett, a two-year law student in charge of public relations for the event. "I think it's going to be a very good program this year."

The second Minority Graduate Career Fair will also feature exhibit tables with information concerning admission (undergraduate and graduate), financial aid, testing, housing and minority support services.

The fair is scheduled from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the University School of Law this Saturday. It is free and refreshments will be served. To register, call 346-3853.

Chinese student union offers much

By Daniel West
Oregon Daily Emerald

The Chinese Student Association was established on this campus in the late 1970s under the student program proposed at that time.

Chinese students were then and are now the second largest group of students on the campus. The student union was created to aid the Chinese students on this campus.

Today, the Chinese student union remains to help the large Chinese population on this campus. The purpose of the student union is to coordinate the academic as well as social events for the Chinese students.

"Because some Chinese people are new to this country, I want them to meet with other Chinese and interact with them," said Bin-Cheng Yao, director of the Chinese Student Association. "My other purpose is to expose this campus to Chinese culture."

Yao said the Chinese student union hasn't changed much in the past decade, but admits that the student union used to be made up of more graduate students. Of the current student union members, about 50 percent are actively involved. The Chinese student union sponsors many films and events throughout the year.

The student union is showing a film called Two Unremitting

Women, Nov. 16 at 6:30 p.m. in 150 Columbia. The film is about two Chinese police women who are trying to solve a difficult case.

The movie was filmed in Hong Kong and features many shots of the city. The film will give the Chinese students an opportunity to socialize.

Another event that the Chinese Student Association organizes is China Night, usually around the Lunar New Year. The night begins with a fair featuring Chinese art and food preparations.

This program, which includes singing, dancing and musical performances, is scheduled for Feb. 13 at 6 p.m. at the EMU.

MURAL

Continued from Page 1

"Individual parts (of the mural) are a mystery," Murray said. "Often it isn't until I get across the parking lot before I see what it's going to look like."

Murray, who was a graphic artist and art director for Family Boating and Explorer, has also worked as stage designer and illustrator for Oregon Repertory Theater and the Eugene Ballet. Recently, she was scenic artist and crew foreman for the movie The Grand Tour and the sequel to the television movie, Sarah, Plain and Tall.

Art Alley is a permanent exhibit of large, colorful murals painted on the backs of buildings in the alley between Main and A streets and between Pioneer Parkway East and 7th Street in the downtown Depot District area. The Oregon Trail mural, located on a wall of the Sutton Block Building at 500 Main St., will be the 12th work in Art Alley.

After finishing the Oregon Trail mural, Murray wants to go back to working with fiber optics, a medium that uses intense light and small, thread-like tubes.

"I like mixing high-tech with the classic look," she said. "I like using some realism, something familiar so that people can connect, (and) they can have some idea of what the artist is talking about."

Murray laughs adding, "And I like to warp peo-

"Individual parts (of the mural) are a mystery. Often it isn't until I get across the parking lot before I see what it's going to look like."

Ann Woodruff Murray
Junction City artist

ple's minds."

When she signs the mural, Murray plans to dedicate it to the artists of the Oregon Trail era.

"I wouldn't be able to construct some of this without paintings from those artists," she said. "I've never drawn buffalo before. I've never seen a buffalo. I had to find about six paintings of bison or buffalo and put them all together."

Murray, who has been involved in art ever since she can remember, said, "Emotionally, my temperament was made for this."

"I would have been an artist had I been born male or female, any other race, any other creed," Murray said. She gestured toward the mural. "A lot of this happens in spite of me. A lot of happy accidents happen often enough, and this is the result."

Cash

For Textbooks
Mon.-Sat.

Smith Family Bookstore

768 E. 13th
1 Block From Campus

345-1651

Illusions
1311 Lincoln
Willamette Towers Building
345-1810

40% off haircut

reg. $15
with shampoo & conditioner

perms

regular, loop rods & spirals
reg. $50-65 w/ conditioners, cut & style. Longer, color treated hair slightly more.

Staff: Gloria Baker, Sheila Ball, Barbara Bowman, & Marla Ewell.
Good Through December 3, 1993.