Dear Superfly,
I think my girlfriend has started seeing another guy! What's the best way to confront her about it?

— Cheated On

Dear Cheated On,

We'd like to say get even ... but we know better. The answer to your question is obvious, confront her! We have designed a sly maneuver for you to approach your girl. Take her to a spendy restaurant and wine, dine and romance her. If all goes well, when you confront her, she'll then stop seeing the other guy because she will have acquired an appreciation for you.

Dear Superfly,
This is my third year at the University. Last year I had a very influential professor who brought imals) and most likely the film will shut them up.

Dear Superfly,

I know school just started, but already I am thinking about spring break. I want to be somewhere warm. Have any ideas?

— Cold

Dear Cold,

We've found the answer that will dry up your runny nose and frost-bitten toes. Superfly suggests taking a road trip to Arizona or New Mexico where there's a Taco Bell at every corner! We insist that you do not fail to check out Sedona and Santa Fe. Bring us back some cacti.

— Superfly

Dear Superfly,

I have lots of great female friends who don't want long-term relationships. They want close quality friends, both male and female, and shallow meaningless romances with fantasy men who are always less than what they expect. Whenever they develop deep emotional ties with a man, sexual intimacy becomes unthinkable. Oh why oh why oh why Superfly?

— Sexy Sentimentalist

Dear Sentimentally Undersexed,

We advise you pick up an attitude fast. Everyone knows that's the quickest way to acquire a flock of women around you 24-7! Now work on being a jerk. Superfly has some great ideas for your spring break ... how about Boston or New York City, where attitude was defined and refined.

to the class a lot of material that moved me to become a vegetarian. The problem is that none of my friends are vegetarians and neither are my parents. They constantly tease me and belittle my choice of a healthier lifestyle. They have no respect for my decision, and I have become very resentful of them. What can I do to shut them up?
