Finding great Chicago-style pizza in this area can be difficult. But short of finding a way to Chicago from here, Stepina's Famous Chicago Style Pizza in Springfield may be one way to satisfy even the pickiest pizza lover's craving for a good pie.

Stepina's recently opened a new dining area that is entirely smoke-free. Pizza aficionados now have the opportunity to sit down and enjoy a homemade deep dish or thin crust pizza. Before business was primarily take-out.

Stepina's strives to use fresh dough; the restaurant makes its own sauce and is famous for its handmade sausage. Besides serving pizza, Stepina's also serves gyros and Greek delicatessen-style sandwiches.

On Saturday night, the wait staff could have used another week of training before getting slammed by jubilant Duck fans following the win over Cal.

The atmosphere isn't Seattle, which is what the slick glass table tops and neon aquamarine booths seem to want to achieve.

But many full-service restaurants in the Eugene/Springfield area forget about having fun and don't require employees to dress a certain way. That can contribute to a restaurant's setting. Stepina's has a dress code that definitely sets a playful tone to the restaurant.

The waitstaff wore black and white, white tops covered by black vests over jeans and ties printed with faces of classic film stars like Charlie Chaplin.

After taking in the surroundings and placing an order of a medium deep dish sausage and green pepper pizza, the next best thing was the appetizers. Garlic cheese bread and mild pickled peppers with green olives are complimentary. They're a great tease to the main dish.

Our pizza arrived and was cut into strips, not the usual triangles of a round pizza. The toppings were covered by plenty of cheese and well-cooked. The peppers were soft and flavorful. Each table has a pepper shaker with a wonderful mixture of peppercorns to grind on the crust. When the pizza is still hot, the freshly ground pepper tastes great on the crust.

Stepina's Chicago Style Pizza isn't for someone who still thinks Little Caesar's is good pizza. The service needed some fine tuning, but the food made up for the mistakes made by the wait staff. The front of the store and where you pay the bill is still reminiscent of the old Stepina's.

Prices range from about $20 for a couple; a family can spend less than $30 and be satisfied.
