

Haircuts...$8
reg. $15
with shampoo & conditioner

Perms...$29⁹⁵
Loop rods & spirals.....$39⁹⁵
reg. $50-65 w/ conditioners, cut & style. Longer, color treated hair slightly more.

Illusions
1311 Lincoln
Willamette Towers Building
345-1810

Coupon good with Lora.
Staff: Gloria Baker, Sheila Ball, Barbara Bowman, Lora Seghetti, Kerri Winters & Maria Woods.
Good Through February 10, 1995.

Nothing risqué, nothing gained. —Alexander Woolcott

EXCLUSIVELY
Adult
VIDEOS • TOYS • GIFTS
NEW! CD-ROMS

1166 South A, Springfield, 726-6969
Open 24 Hours (Almost)
Locally owned and operated for over ten years.

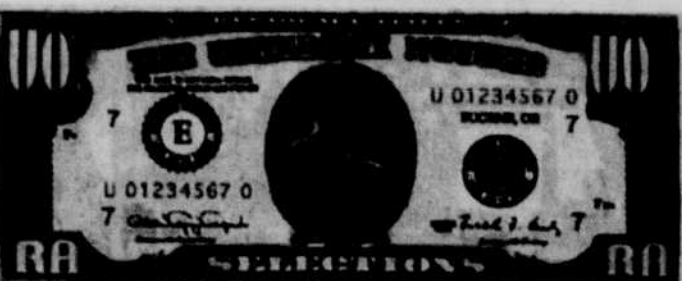

WorldTeach is looking for people who have a mind to travel.

WorldTeach
Call 1-(800)-4-TEACH-O

Do you fit the bill?

We're looking for a few good ducks to be Resident Assistants in the Residence Halls for the 1995-96 Academic Year.

You must attend one of the following informational meetings:

Tuesday	Jan. 10	7 p.m.	Gold Room (Carson Hall)
Wednesday	Jan. 11	7 p.m.	Riley Hall (11th & Patterson)
Thursday	Jan. 12	3 p.m.	Ben Linder Room (EMU)
Tuesday	Jan. 17	7 p.m.	Ramey Room (Hamilton Caf.)

See the University Housing advertisement in the classifieds for further information if you think you "fit the bill". Applications available at main Housing office, Walton Hall

An Affirmative Action Equal Opportunity Institution. We are an Equal Opportunity Employer. Diversity and compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

FINLEY
Continued from Page 11

as a solid and competitive team, guiding Oregon to the NCAA tournament in all but four of his years as coach, and leading the team to as high as 11th in the nation.

In his first season, Finley qualified as coach of the 1971 Greco-Roman World Championships.

But it would be in 1975, just his fifth season, that Finley would experience his greatest success. He guided Oregon to a 16-2-1 conference title en route to his first of two conference coach of the year awards. The Ducks set a team record with nine out of 10 individual conference championships and finished 12th at the NCAA tournament.

"We had a super bunch of guys," Finley recalled. "It was a good feeling of accomplishment because they did so well."

In 1980, the team began a three-year dominance that would establish the Ducks as a true wrestling powerhouse. The team finished 11th at the NCAA tournament, and Finley followed it up by leading the Ducks to a 22-3 record and the first of two consecutive Pac-10 Conference championships. The team then posted a 14-4 record as Finley captured his second conference coach of the year award.

It was in 1984 that Finley's career peaked. He was named coach of the 1984 U.S. Olympic Greco-Roman Wrestling squad, as the team took two individual gold medals, one silver and one bronze medal, marking the first time ever that a U.S. wrestler had earned an Olympic Greco-Roman medal. For his effort Finley was awarded the national wrestling coach of the year honor.

All in all, Finley has coached 18 All-Americans and led the Ducks to the Top 25 in 11 of his seasons. A majority of the Oregon wrestling records have been set under Finley, including most individual season and career wins and all but two of the team's individual conference championships.

And Finley, a native of wrestling-rich Newberg, Ore., is no slouch when it comes to hands-on wrestling experience. A graduate of Oregon State, Finley won the Pacific Coast Conference title twice.

"As a wrestler, I didn't have all the talent in the world, but I found I could make up the difference with hard work," said Finley, humbly.

But whether it was talent or hard work that got him there, Finley had great success in world competition. After placing fourth at the U.S. World Championships in 1962 and 1963, he won the gold medal in the freestyle competition at the 1963 Pan-American Games and took fourth place in the Greco-Roman category in the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo.

So, after accomplishing so much, what keeps Finley at Oregon?

In a state so rich with

“I would definitely like to win the NCAA championship, and I think this school is capable of doing it.”

— RON FINLEY
Wrestling coach

wrestling talent, it is an ideal place for such a wrestling icon to coach. Finley said that the environment, including the administrators and the fans, makes Oregon a favorable place to work.

"The state of Oregon has been a great state for wrestling from the beginning," Finley said. "I love it here. One reason I've stayed here so long is that this is a great place to work."

But the humble Finley, who attributes much of the team's success to his assistant coaches, does have ulterior motives for staying with the Ducks — that is, if you call a national championship and much deserved respect ulterior motives.

"Not all of my goals have been met," Finley said. "No matter how long it takes, I'm not a quitter. I would definitely like to win the NCAA championship and I think this school is capable of doing it. I think we will continue to stay tough in the future."

"My main goal," Finley finally asserted, "is to see wrestling be a spotlight sport at the University of Oregon and get the respect it deserves."

WOMEN
Continued from Page 11

Inexperience stepped to the forefront in the final two minutes at the Los Angeles Sports Arena, snapping the women's three-game winning streak. Five fouls and two turnovers cost the Ducks their four-point margin and a chance to have a share of the Pac-10 lead.

The Ducks' loss of starting seniors Jessica Schutt and Karen Healea have made an impact on the Ducks' squad.

Schutt has been hampered with a sprained ankle since Dec. 17, while Healea fractured her right hand during practice prior to the women's Dec. 10 contest vs. Portland.

"She (Schutt) has not been at practice at all," said Jody Runge, Oregon head coach. "I thought after four weeks she would be back to practice, but it is going a lot slower than I thought it would. Karen has eight weeks before she gets to use her hand at all. So she'll be late February at the earliest and that's if she is on schedule."

Although the team has had its share of sporadic problems, Arianne Boyer, Sally Crowe and Renae Fegent have stepped to the forefront for the Ducks in the seniors' absence.

Boyer, a Pac-10 all-freshman team member last season, has begun to emerge as one of the top players in the conference, leading the Ducks in rebounding each of the past three games while averaging 20 points and 10.5 rebounds during league play.

The Australian connection of Crowe and Fegent has been on fire. Since Crowe's arrival just a month ago, she has already showed signs of adapting to the different style of play and her new surroundings. The 5-9 guard recorded eight steals and six assists in one game for the second time this season at UCLA before scoring a collegiate-best 18 points (8-9 FG) at USC.

"I think she is still adjusting to our system, but she brings a confidence and experience in the game that we didn't have," Runge said. "Just her determination helps us a lot."

Many of Crowe's assists are dropped into the 6-foot-3 Fegent, the other half of the connection. Fegent has continued to lead the team's offensive production in two of the last three games, averaging 19.7 points a game since the first of the year. On the defensive end of the court Fegent tops the conference in blocked shots (2.7).

Oregon State (9-2, 1-1) is off to its best start in eight seasons, losing only to then-No. 6 Vanderbilt before being upset at UCLA. The Beavers' situation is the exact opposite of that of Oregon.

For the Beavers it has been a veteran contingent that has taken advantage of its five starters.

The only problem OSU has been having is putting two halves of basketball together in the same game. They outscored USC 46-23 in the second half to overcome a 10-point halftime deficit en route to a 69-56 victory before squandering a nine-point halftime advantage to UCLA.

The top three for OSU are Tanja Kostic, who leads the Pac-10 in scoring (21.4), Anette Mollerstrom, who averages 18 points a game during the Pac-10 schedule and Bokky Vidic, who ranks second in assists (6.0).

Runge thinks that the Ducks do not need to key on any one player defensively to win the Civil War game against the Beavers. She thinks that the Ducks are just one step away from being a top-level team, and she feels that the Ducks will be in a position to pick up some national exposure against the Beavers.

"It's a good challenge for us right now and I think it's a good opportunity to gain some national exposure since they've been getting votes in the Top 25," Runge said. "I believe we are (one step away)."

FREE SNOWBOARD RENTAL*

with any $100.00 purchase of snowboard clothing or products.

With Coupon. Expires 2/28/95. *Deposit required.

LAZAR'S BAZAR
57 W. Broadway
Downtown Mall

OPEN 7 DAYS
687-0139

957 Willamette
Downtown Mall