Error

At the Finance Hearing last Friday, I made a grave error and stated that Sen. Sarah Keech had missed three consecutive meetings. This is not the case. I apologize for the anger and frustration that this may have caused Sarah and for the misinformation to the Emerald.

Primo Ignorant

The smug appearance of Primo Fontana's column concerning Fontana's surpn concerning his ignorance. Fontana writes as if the University exists high up in some ivory tower, in a walled Hellenic community and without relevance to any polis or community which surrounds it. The address to which I have directed this letter concludes with a zip code that indicates a close proximity to the community in which I live.

Whenever low-cost housing is removed from any part of two interdependent communities, the demand for low-cost housing in the total community is increased. Where, as in Eugene, the availability of low-cost or affordable housing is almost non-existent, the scourge of homelessness and its emotional and economic consequences are accordingly increased. Even if the University shoves aside those on the waiting list for Westmoreland to accommodate those low-income students now occupying Amazon, there are still that many more folks on the outside looking in.

For the landlord class, of which Dan Williams of the University is one of the most affluent, and for his immediate supervisor, President Frohnmayer, former and future candidate from the party of Newt Gingrich, low-cost student housing is of little concern. For those not so fortunate as columnist Fontana, destruction of Amazon may terminate their college education. Maybe they can be replaced by some wealthy Californians.

Biased

Thank you for finally running an article on the good work that OSPIRG does. It is an organization that does a lot of good work to benefit students, the environment and society.

As a pre-journalism student, I was disappointed to see the biased coverage that has been in your publication recently. The one or two students that have been working to de-fund OSPIRG have had a sounding block in your paper. This is unfair because, until recently, that is the only coverage that OSPIRG has gotten in the Emerald. I think that everyone has a right to express his or her opinion, but a newspaper should have equal and unbiased coverage.

I strongly support OSPIRG and so do many other students. That is why every time the organization goes up for reaffirmation, it is approved by the student body.

OSPIRG works on issues that affect us now and will continue to affect us in the future if we do not do something about it now. They are planning a Free the Planet/Earth Day celebration in April to commemorate the 25th anniversary of Earth Day. Students started Earth Day in 1970 because they believed they could make a difference. OSPIRG is working hard to make that difference and we should be grateful to them for that.

Our world would be perfect if we did not need OSPIRG anymore, but we do need it. Until the time that the environment, endangered species, the homeless and consumers are safe and protected, we need OSPIRG to help remedy these problems. It will take time and a lot of work, but with the help of groups such as OSPIRG, our generation can make a difference.

Punish pulpits?

When the last abortion clinic closes in Mississippi, and girls in trouble find nowhere to purge themselves of repulsive infestations of enlarging cellular clumps and they are backed into the corner of desperation with nowhere to turn — what if they resort to terrorism? What if, in their deranged neglect, they resort to fire-bombing churches and shooting up pulpits across the land?

Consider this scenario: pregnant teens from the depressed economic strata of our stressed society crack up in a blind alley of closed options where nobody seems to care and band together to bloodily butcher the external gatekeepers to their own bodies. Under the guidelines laid down by the ecclesiastical trio in Wednesday's Emerald (Feb. 8), that terrorist reaction by an "ignored minority" could be properly blamed on the anti-abortion Roman Catholic hierarchy, among others on the Christian Right (but nobody else's).

The doctrine of "individual responsibility" so liberally invoked by the conservative ascendancy has some convenient exceptions.
