Softball squad sweeps pair at home

Mark McTyre
Oregon Daily Emerald

The nationally-ranked Oregon softball team got back on the winning track on Friday by sweeping a doubleheader against visiting Simon Fraser in the Ducks' home opener. Kim Kampfer threw two complete games for the Ducks, scattering 12 hits over the twin-bill to improve her record to 2-2.

In the Ducks' first game, Kampfer got all the run support she needed from shortstop

Kathy Stahl's second-inning, three-run blast to push the Ducks out to an early 4-1 lead. Kampfer allowed only four hits while striking out four as Oregon went on to a 4-3 victory.

The second game turned into a slugfest early. The Ducks trailed after the second inning 3-2, but in the third and fourth the Ducks tallied six runs en route to a 10-6 decision. Kampfer showed her fatigue over the second seven innings that she pitched on the day, as she allowed eight hits, five earned runs, and three walks. However, Kampfer did notch three more strikeouts in the second game.

Oregon freshman Jennifer Apfelbaum had the best day of her short college career finishing with five hits in six at-bats, four runs scored and four RBI. In the 10-6 victory, Apfelbaum was 3 for 3, including a two-run shot over the fence, while chipping in defensively with five put-outs and assisting on two others from her second base position.

of the court from start to finish. It was Stanford's 15th consecutive home victory and its 38th straight Pac-10 home win.

The Ducks, (16-9, 9-7 Pac-10) are holding hope at an outside shot in the NCAA derby. They face USC and UCLA at home next week and must win both to be considered.

"We dug ourselves into a hole right off the bat tonight," Oregon coach Jody Runge said. "We have to play a lot better if we're going to beat USC and UCLA at home. Stanford kept bringing in good, fresh people. They're going to represent the Pac-10 well."

Kaplan, a 6-5 senior, played only 20 minutes but was unstoppable near the basket, scoring virtually at will. She also was 2 for 2 from the free throw line and grabbed 3 rebounds.

"It was real emotional tonight," Kaplan, playing her last regular-season home game, said. "We've come to the end of a big part of our lives. In some ways it's sad, but it's also a happy time."

Heather Owen added 13 off the bench for Stanford, which also got a dozen points from Kate Starbird. Bobbie Kelsey had 11.

Stanford zipped to a 22-4 lead, paced by nine points from Starbird and seven from Kaplan. The Ducks went six minutes without a basket during that run.

Stanford increased its lead to 44-16 with 4:26 left in the half and took a 54-21 halftime advantage. Kaplan had 17 in the first 20 minutes.

Oregon, which was outrebounded 47-20, was led by Sally Crowe with 21. Jessica Schutt contributed 12.

going to be a very big game for them."

And there was no lack of intensity on the floor. With the stakes being what they were, emotions ran high with several shouting and shoving matches breaking out as the two teams tried to gain the mental advantage over the other.

"There was some talking out there," Lyden said. "It's part of basketball."

It was a Lyden blocked shot to end the first half that ignited the most heated exchange as the 6-foot-6 senior stuffed Stanford forward Andy Poppink's three-point attempt prompting a round of shoving. Parker eventually stepped in as the enforcer.

"This is a game of competition, and I'm a competitor," Parker said. "We don't back down to anyone."

Back down they didn't. And in the end, the outgoing seniors got just what they wanted from their last game at home.

First on their mind was a win that would keep them in position to go to the "Big Dance" for the first time since 1961. With that goal in check, the seniors could then sort through some of their emotions on their last game at Mac Court. But for some, it was hard to put a finger on.

"It hasn't really hit me yet," Lyden said. "Right now we still have at least three more games left. When the season's over, I'll have a chance to look back at this."

For this group of seniors that has weathered all the many sour times at Oregon, the win over Stanford in their final home game couldn't have been any sweeter.

"There's no other way that I would have wanted it," Williams said.

"I just wanted to go out with a win, a win of importance," Potter said. "We won, and we're 18-7. It's exciting just to be a part of all this."

Interested in Health Education?

Become a Peer Health Educator and organize presentations on health issues, such as sexuality and nutrition, in a small group of motivated peers. By counseling students on fitness, HIV, and other health topics, you can help others. You'll also improve your public speaking techniques when you organize presentations and workshops. Finally, when you write articles for the newsletter Well Now, you will provide health information for the campus community.

This two-term class offers six upper-division credits through EDPM, three credits per term.

Call the Health Education Office at 346-4456 and find out how to register, or pick up an application at the Health Education Office in the Student Health Center.

In Commemoration of Women's History Month

Peer Health Education invites you to join us in a celebration of women. Visit displays in the EMU and learn about how women's body image has evolved through time, and how our roles in today's society affect our personal health, fitness and nutrition!

When: Tuesday, March 7, and Wednesday, March 8, 11 a.m.-3 p.m.

Where: EMU Lobby

Why: to gather resources and information about current health issues, such as:

- What exactly is the FEMALE ATHLETE TRIAD SYNDROME? ...and are you at risk?
- FAT... the good, the bad, the dangers, and risks! Is there such a thing as "too little fat?" • and much more!

Test your knowledge and awareness at our interactive display. Strengthen your body and mind, and
