Ineptitude

Although this began as a commendation of the science departments and the need for a competent representative of the sciences in the Student Senate, I see the most pressing reason to vote for me is the outright ineptitude of the ASUO.

My statement was omitted from the "Voter's Guide" because of the sheer incompetence of the Election Board; this diatribe reflects the earnest need for conception of the integrity of the sciences into the miasma of inefficiency that is the ASUO. Resultant from my science background, I can bring a trait to the Student Senate that is alien to their operations: accountability.

As a student of biochemistry, I have experienced the travail of a science major, yet I also understand the need for those interested in the sciences to voice their ideas, which have heralded the changes in society since the Enlightenment.

I believe that I am qualified to represent the diversity of the sciences as I have many varied interests: I am the editor in chief of Biospheres, a lab researcher in molecular biology, a student in the Honors College and a member of the University crew team.

Vote for Doran Spencer, the voice of all science students at the University.

I write in support of Niki Scott, a candidate for ASUO executive. She is an active participant in the continuing dialogue on women's issues.

As a feminist and activist she has worked within and outside of women-centered organizations to create an environment where women can participate and be acknowledged. Niki facilitated a discussion group for a Women's Studies 101 class that I taught during winter quarter.

Her dedication to the process of working with her peers was outstanding. She challenged the group to condense the understanding of issues at an individual, institutional and cultural level. She created a dynamic environment where women found their voice — individually and collectively.

Within in the Greek system, she created a forum where issues of violence against women could be acknowledged and addressed.

On another equally important level, Niki integrates feminist principles into her many other responsibilities, including peer advising for the business department.

Her consistent attention to the issues reflects an understanding that activism is not only a list of organizations, it is a way of life.

Progressive

ASPAC's goal is for student representatives to discuss student issues and University policies with President Frohmayer. To effectively accomplish this, we need committed representatives knowledgeable about the issues of all students.

I'm an Honors College sophomore majoring in general science. I've been involved in a variety of student organizations and am in touch with many people on campus.

My experiences include working with MEChA, APASU, International Students Association, Women's Center, Student University Relations Council and University Orchestra.

Through my involvement with these organizations I have worked with issues concerning crossing cultural barriers, changing curriculum, working toward helping all students better understand the problems affecting students of color and international students and promoting involvement in campus activities.

As a student leader, I believe that student concerns need to be heard. By having a campus with a rich diversity of programs and creating an environment for student issues to be heard, students can be empowered and have their issues addressed and dealt with.

As a member of ASPAC, I will be an open ear to the University community and make sure that the concerns of all students are heard.

Vote progressive. Vote Lisa Khan for ASPAC.

Star Talk

I was happy to hear that Star Talk has returned to KWVA on Sundays at 5 p.m.

But one question. I'm familiar with Captain Zane Adams and the Ensign Farmboy, but where did they pick up these guys Red 5 and Chief Pung? Just curious!
