

THEATER

Ursula Aller (standing), Cara Keenan and Justin Davanzo star in The Eccentricities of Nightingale, which will play at the Arena Theatre.

'Nightingale' ends theatre season

The University Theatre's Second Season concludes with performances of Tennessee William's The Eccentricities of Nightingale beginning May 3 at the Arena Theatre.

The play will continue May 4 to 6 and May 11 to 13. Performances begin at 8 p.m., and there is no late seating. Tickets are $5 for the general public; $4 for senior citizens, faculty and non-University students; and $3 for University students.

Nightingale is the story of Alma (Ursula Aller), a sensitive young woman who afraid of remaining a spinster. Her stern minister father and deranged mother give her little hope she will ever marry. She makes a final attempt to win the heart of a doctor (Justin Davanzo), whose social-climbing mother frowns on his attachment to Alma. The play centers on the complex relationship between these two characters.

John Rustan, Anna Lawrence and Cara Keenan also star in the play. Members of the Eccentricities Club are Mike Doherty, Troy Fischaller, Carrie Gardner and Stacey Wallace. Graduate student Janet Gupton will direct.

Oregon's Lee Lynch

will read from Cactus Love, her newest collection of short stories.
April 29, 8:00 p.m.

Lee is well known for her many novels including Morton River Valley, That Old Studebaker and Sue Slate, Private Eye. She has also published a list of her newspaper columns in The Amazon Trail.
