

HOCKEY

Detroit outshot the Sharks 33-15 on Sunday. It was the Red Wings' biggest shutout victory in a playoff game since an 8-0 win over Toronto on April 10, 1988.

It was the first playoff shutout for Detroit goalie Mike Vernon since May 2, 1989, when he defeated Chicago 1-0. Vernon also shut out San Jose 3-0 on April 13.

"We had six days off, so it was kind of hard to get back into things early," Vernon said. "I was just glad they tested me a few times in the first period, so I could get going. It would have been tougher if they hadn't tested me until later on."

Dino Ciccarelli and Paul Coffey scored in the second period. Doug Brown, Ray Sheppard, Sergei Fedorov and Kris Draper added to the rout in the third, bringing an octopus barrage down from the stands. The octopus became a staple of Detroit playoff hockey back when the NHL was a six-team league and it took eight victories to win the Stanley Cup.

Fedorov also assisted on three goals.

"It's too early to say what is different this year," said Fedorov, who also assisted on three goals. "They just came off a tough Game 7 in Calgary, and that would be tough on any team."

"Getting the rest definitely helped us. We'll just have to see how well we can build on this."

It was the first playoff loss for Flaherty, who relieved Arturs Irbe for the final three minutes of Game 5 against Calgary, then made his first playoff start in Game 6. Flaherty won the final two games to lift the Sharks into the conference semifinals for the second consecutive season.
