Underclassmen dominate draft

TORONTO (AP) — Even more than usual, the NBA draft belonged to the young.

The first five selections Wednesday night were players younger than 21, including four who left school after their sophomore years and one straight out of high school.

The Golden State Warriors made Joe Smith, a 6-foot-10 forward from Maryland with silky inside moves, the first pick. The Los Angeles Clippers followed with another forward, Antonio McDyess, a player largely unnoticed during his two years at Alabama until his strong post-season.

Later, the Clippers traded the rights to McDyess along with Randy Woods to Denver for the 15th pick, Brent Barry of Oregon State, and forward Rodney Rogers.

With NBA commissioner David Stern announcing the selections for the first NBA draft held outside the United States, Philadelphia used the third choice to take North Carolina's Jerry Stackhouse, a forward expected to play shooting guard.

The fourth selection belonged to Washington, which went for another sophomore Tar Heel — Rasheed Wallace, a 6-10 center-forward who shot 65 percent from the field.

Minnesota went fifth, producing the biggest question mark of the draft, Chicago high schooler Kevin Garnett. The rail-thin 6-10 forward is only the fourth high school player ever selected in the NBA draft.

"I've seen a lot in my 19 years," Garnett said. "Given the chance, I'm going to prove to all of you that I am man enough to take what is given and mature enough to give it out."

McDyess, Stackhouse and Wallace are 20, and Smith will be 20 next month.

In Oakland Coliseum Arena, about 2,000 fans cheered wildly when Smith's name was announced.

"You will love this guy," new Warriors' general manager Dave Twardzik told the fans. "He's a blue-collar worker, he's going to do a lot of dirty work for us."

Last year with the Terrapins, Smith averaged 20.8 points, 10.6 rebounds and 2.9 blocks a game.

Oregon wrestlers split pair in Japan

Mark McTyre

Oregon wrestlers Chris Jensen, Rich Polkinghorn, Cory Sonnen and Nathan Sullivan remained unbeaten while the Ducks split a pair of weekend matches on their two-week Japanese tour.

The Ducks dropped a close 7-6 decision on Saturday to Japan's reigning national collegiate champions for the last 16 years, Nippon College of Physical Education, before rebounding with an 8-5 win over Daito Bunka University Sunday.

Sonnen scored a 7-4 decision over Nippon's Shinya Yamagata at 68 kilograms before returning the next day to pin Daito Bunka's Katsuhiko Ogura 2:50 into the match. Jensen also improved his tour totals to 3-0 at 57 kilograms with a 5-3 win over Espoir national champion Teruki Yamamoto of Nippon before posting a 12-4 victory over Kazutaka Takahashi of Daito Bunka University.

Also recording falls were Oregon's Rob Tanner and Scott Norton over Nippon's Keiji Oriyama. NCAA all-American Kevin Roberts added a win over Daito's Shinya Okuyama Takatu.

The Oregon wrestlers will return to the United States Friday after a scheduled competition in Japan Wednesday against the all-army all-star team.
