Foes to square off in weekend stint

Chris McKnight takes the mound tonight, hoping to move the Ems up in the division title race.

■ BASEBALL: Pitcher Greg Gerland heads list of the Ems' top contributors

By Mark McTyre

The Eugene Emeralds have been waiting for this weekend for a long time, and now it has arrived.

After starting the season by being thrashed three games to one by Southern Division rival Portland, the Ems have a chance for sweet revenge. Trailing the division leaders by four and a half games going into tonight's contest, the Ems could capture second place with a sweep of the Rockies in Portland.

To get this opportunity, the Ems have put together an amazing run over the past two and a half weeks to close in on the division leaders. With an outstanding mark of 14-5 and a string of 11 consecutive victories at home during that time, the Ems narrowed what was once an eight-game gap in record.

The Ems' top contributor during this remarkable run is without any doubt starting pitcher Greg Gerland. Since being called up June 28 from the Braves' Gulf Coast rookie team, the 22-year-old has been nothing but superb.

In 21 innings pitched, the left-handed hurler holds a 3-0 record with 17 strikeouts and a 1.71 earned run average. He also has held the opposition to a dismal .221 batting average. Expected to get a start late in the series, Gerland will have a chance to pick up his fourth win and possibly boost his team to within a half-game of the Rockies before returning home Monday to face Northern Division leader Bellingham.

The Ems' visit to Portland could not have come at a better time as the Rockies have been in a slump as of late, losing six of their last 10 games. On the mound for the Ems tonight will be lefty Chris McKnight, making his fourth start of the season. McKnight holds a 1-1 record with a 3.63 ERA. Like Gerland, the Fayetteville, Ga., native has also been effective versus the opposition, holding the batters to a .235 average.
