Complete two easy questionnaires that will take a total of no more than one hour, and receive 5 bucks cash on the spot. Some participants may also gain insight into themselves through this experiment. This research will be conducted in Graub Hall, on the University of Oregon Campus, and compares people's responses to two independently developed questionnaires. The responses provided by participants will be fully confidential. This research will provide data for the masters degree thesis of Counseling Psychology student Jeff Burch. His campus address is: Division of Counseling Psychology, School of Education, University of Oregon.
To participate you must be either registered at the U of O for summer session or have been registered for spring term and have an intention to register for fall term. For further information, or to make an appointment to participate in the experiment,
Contact Jeff Burch at 689-1515
