University student discovered in woods after five days

NORTHWEST
A deaf journalism student from the University, missing in the woods for five days near Falls City, was found safe Saturday morning and treated for hypothermia.

Seph Reese Jr., 27, was found on Socialist Valley Road, 2 1/2 miles from his mother's house.

Corky Wagner, an assistant fire chief at Falls City, was on a hunting trip when he discovered Reese, naked and muddy, standing in the middle of the road.

Advanced hypothermia can cause victims to feel too warm, sometimes enough to make them remove their clothing.

Reportedly, Reese survived the five days by drinking rainwater and eating blueberries, centipedes and slugs.

Radiation test victims shouldn't be notified, government panel says

NATIONAL
WASHINGTON (AP) — There would be little or no benefit in compensating or notifying most of the people who took part, often unknowingly, in some 4,000 radiation experiments the government sanctioned during the Cold War, a presidential panel says.

Concluding the tests posed little long-term risk, the advisory panel rejected the idea of widespread efforts to contact or provide medical follow-up for survivors among the estimated tens of thousands of subjects.

In nearly two years of investigation and a review of more than 100,000 documents, the advisory group found evidence of many tests in which subjects' consent was lacking or in doubt.

Experiments often were kept under wraps for decades because of fear of bad publicity, the advisory panel said, and in many cases the identity of test subjects remains unknown.

The nearly 1,000-page report, a draft copy of which was obtained by The Associated Press, is to be released by President Clinton on Tuesday at a White House ceremony.

Most of the Cold War-era experiments involved adult patients being given low-dose radioactive tracers that "are unlikely to have caused physical harm" or resulted in long-term health concerns, the advisory panel said.

"The damage is not physical injury, although this, too, did occur in some cases, (but) the pain felt by people who believe that they or their loved ones were treated with disrespect," the report said.
