Mariners can't beat Hershiser

■ BASEBALL: The Cleveland pitcher remains unbeaten in the post season as the Indians take a 3-2 series advantage

CLEVELAND (AP) — Triumphant, Omar Vizquel took the game in hand.

Vizquel stabbed Luis Sojo's eighth-inning line drive to shortstop and demonstratively turned it into a double play as the Cleveland Indians held off the Seattle Mariners 3-2 Sunday night, taking a 3-2 lead in the AL playoffs.

Jim Thome put Cleveland on top with a two-run homer off Chris Bosio in the sixth inning, and the Indians twice wriggled out of difficult situations to stay there.

The gut-wrenching finish kept Orel Hershiser perfect in the postseason, improving his career record in the playoffs and World Series to 7-0 with a 1.47 ERA. He broke a tie with former Yankees pitcher Lefty Gomez for most postseason wins without a loss.

Game 6 will be back in the Kingdome on Tuesday night, and Randy Johnson once again will be asked to save the season for Seattle. It'll be his fourth appearance this month with the Mariners' season hanging in the balance.

Indians reliever Paul Assenmacher was the first to step up big on Hershiser's behalf. The left-hander struck out Ken Griffey Jr. and Jay Buhner in succession to end the seventh inning, stranding the potential tying run at third base.

The Mariners then put runners at first and second with one out in the eighth, but Sojo — whose RBI double had won Game 1 — hit a 3-2 pitch directly at Vizquel.

Vizquel, the former Seattle shortstop, caught it before tagging out Alex Diaz as he overran second. Had there been no outs, Vizquel would have had an easy unassisted triple play, because he stepped hard on second base for emphasis.

Sojo flung his bat toward the Seattle dugout in disgust.

Jose Mesa closed it out for Cleveland, his first postseason save after converting 46 of 48 during the regular season. Edgar Martinez ended the game with a fly to the warning track in center.

Hershiser, the MVP of the playoffs and World Series for Los Angeles in 1988, wasn't as sharp as usual, but he still managed to strike out eight batters in six innings, surpassing his own team record of seven in a postseason game.

He's 3-0 with an 0.84 ERA in three playoff starts for Cleveland.

Eddie Murray had three hits, drove in a run and scored another for the Indians, who could scarcely have afforded to go back to the Kingdome trailing by a game. The Mariners are 4-1 at the dome in the playoffs, and Johnson is up next.

Bosio matched Hershiser through five innings, limiting baseball's best-hitting team to one unearned run on five hits.

But with one out in the sixth, Murray doubled, and three pitches later Thome homered into the mezzanine in right field, putting Cleveland ahead 3-2.

The Indians squandered a chance to blow it open in the seventh, leaving the bases loaded when Bill Risley struck out Thome and got Manny Ramirez to fly to right. Cleveland is 1-for-13 with the bases loaded in the postseason.

Shoddy defense cost both teams a run, but it was Albert Belle's gaffe that momentarily put the Indians in a hole.

With Joey Cora on first base and two outs in the fifth, Belle — who missed the previous game because of a strained right ankle — hurried under Griffey's fly ball in shallow left but had it glance off his glove for an error.

Cora, running full speed from the start, was rounding third by the time Belle picked up the ball, and he slid in safely as Belle's throw skipped past the plate for another error.

Wayne Kirby replaced Belle in left two innings later when Belle's ankle stiffened up again.

Winds gusting up to 30 mph played havoc with just about every ball hit into the air, as the Indians committed four errors in all.

Cleveland scored its first run on Murray's RBI single in the first, set up when Seattle first baseman Tino Martinez let Vizquel's grounder go through his legs — a striking imitation of Bill Buckner's error for Boston in Game 6 of the 1986 World Series.
