

Record-Breaker: 'I'm going to give Dad the ball'

[at Stanford last year]. Things that I've kept underneath my hat and have tried to live with everyday.

"It [the record] was cool and a really nice thing to do but I still missed a few balls today that I'm not used to missing. I'm sure at the end of the season I'll be able to look back at it and appreciate my accomplishment."

After the record-breaking reception, McLemore was quick to grab the ball from the official as he ran off the field.

"I'm going to give the ball to my dad so he can put it up in his house," McLemore said. "He doesn't get much; my mom usually takes everything."

With the record gone by, McLemore hopes that some day another player will be in the situation that he was in Saturday night and reflect on him as he did about Rashad.

"I'm sure at the end of the season I'll be able to look back at it and appreciate my accomplishment."

UO Wideout

"Hopefully someday I can be the type of person when a young kid sits here and he'll be able to say those things about me," McLemore said.

McLemore wrapped up the whole night by blowing off his achievement and talking only of his teammates and their accomplishments.

"As long as we keep playing like this, I could care less if I catch another pass the rest of the year," McLemore said. "As long as we keep playing the way we have, nothing is going to stop us unless they put a bullet in each and every one of our hearts."
