Men's Basketball: Beavers played slow, physical game against Ducks

Milling had nine rebounds and 11 points, playing 35 of the 40 minutes. Sophomore center Mike Carson added some excitement to the game with three blocked shots and sophomore Jamar Curry blocked a shot and won eleven points of his own.

For the Beavers, sophomore guards Rob Williams and J.D. Vetter had 17 and 16 points respectively in the loss. But Oregon State could not overcome the 25 turnovers it committed.

The game was played Beaver style — slow, low scoring, and full of elbows. Oregon State players fouled the Ducks 26 times and watched as freshman forward Sasa Petrovic picked up a technical foul and Vetter fouled out at the end of the game.

The Ducks, though, were no angels as they were forced to play the Beavers' style in order to compete. Milling picked up a technical of his own, but no Oregon player picked up more than three personal fouls.

According to Milling, head coach Jerry Green was not happy after the game.

"He was pretty upset," Milling said. "He knew just like we knew that we didn't play up to our top level. We have to play a lot better to beat the other Pac-10 teams."

Green admitted he did not like playing the Beavers' rough style.

"I think the good thing out of this was the win," Green said. "It's an ugly win, but it's a style of play that people choose to play and we've got to get more used to it because apparently they're going to be allowed to do that."

After beating the Beavers so badly only eight days before, Lawrence said the team may have taken Sunday's game a bit too lightly.

"I think we came out a little relaxed," Lawrence said. "I think we came out physically ready to play, but I think mentally we didn't come into the game ready to play."

The Ducks will be tested this week when the Washington State Cougars visit on Thursday night and the Washington Huskies come into Mac Court on Saturday afternoon for the first time this season.

Ducks go 6-2 during winter break

■ WOMEN'S BASKETBALL: Oregon

improved its record but dropped its Pac-10 opener to Oregon State

By Mark McTyre

The winter break brought six gifts to the Oregon women's basketball team as it tallied a 6-2 mark during the month-long break from school, improving its overall record to 8-3.

Entering the break, the Ducks were on a two-game winning streak and extended it to seven games with wins over Portland, Santa Clara, St. Mary's, San Diego State and UNLV, before dropping a 47-56 decision to Southern Utah on the road.

However, four days later the Ducks bounced back on Jan. 2 with a 83-45 blowout against Gonzaga at home. The win was a prep for Oregon's first Pacific-10 Conference game of the season, pitting the team against No. 12-ranked Oregon State at Gill Coliseum.

Statistics from the past showed that the intrastate rivalry contest would be a tight game. The last time the two opened the Pac-10 season against each other the final score was 52-51 in favor of the Ducks.

In the first half, the Beavers shot 56 percent from the floor while the Ducks were hitting at a 43.5 percent clip. Although Oregon State sank four more baskets than the Ducks, Oregon was able to make up for it from the free throw line as the team combined for 10-of-11 from the charity stripe. At halftime the score was tied at 32.

In the second half, the two teams battled down to the wire with the game ending on a missed winning-shot attempt by Oregon guard Cindie Edamura. The Beavers won 58-57.
