BACK PAIN RESEARCH STUDY

If you are 18-60 years old and you have had back pain for no more than 3 days, you may be eligible to participate in a research project to study the effectiveness and safety of Relafen®, 1 gm and 2 gm, compared with placebo, for patients with acute onset moderate to severe back pain.

(Relafen® is an approved drug and has been shown to be effective in the treatment of the signs and symptoms of arthritis pain.)

Ducks overcome rough first game

■ CLUB SPORTS: The hockey team wins one game and the ranger challenge ends season

After a rocky start, the Oregon club hockey team split a two-game series against Western Washington in Bellingham on Jan. 13 and 14.

Three Ducks were ejected in controversial fashion in the first game as they were downed by Western Washington 8-6. Defenseman Jordan Weiner, right wing Sean Schoppe, and defenseman Robert Wasson were all ejected from Saturday's game.

On Jan. 14, the referee who ejected the three Ducks started at center for Western Washington. No Western Washington players were thrown out.

"We were playing a man down the entire time, but we still should have beat them," Mackey said.

Oregon's head coach William Ham will file a formal protest against the referee with the Amateur Hockey Association Division of Referees in Seattle, Wash.

"What they did is not illegal, but ethically it is unheard of," Ham said.

"The referee absolutely weighted his calls for the other team."

Goalie Keith Barbato was also disappointed with the officiating but didn't lay the entire blame on them.

"That's an excuse that we can't use," Barbato said. "There were a couple of defensive breakdowns on my part."

With the playing surface even for Sunday's game, the Ducks got revenge with a 5-3 win.

"We passed well and mixed up the defense well," Mackey said of the win.

Barbato agreed with Mackey.

"The defense kept the shots down and it was rare that we had a break in the zone," Barbato said.

Ham was happy with the win and the more unified team hockey that Oregon played in the second game.

Rob Aches and Weiner turned in strong performances for Oregon, center Seth Prouser said.

Oregon's club sport ranger challenge team wrapped up its season with a third place finish in the Task Force Oregon meet at Western Oregon State College. The fall term meet featured Army ROTC ranger teams from throughout the state of Oregon.

"We were a little disappointed that we didn't finish higher," team coordinator Charles Johnson said, "but we're still proud of our effort."

The meet included a 10-kilometer march done in full gear, a weapons assembly drill, a rope bridge execution and an Army Physical Fitness Test consisting of a 2-mile run and sit-up and push-up tests.

Hiring: Fitzsimmons Suns' new coach time. "It said, 'Vice President of Nothing,' and he very politely removed that sign."

Fitzsimmons warned reporters not to ask him about alleged bad coaching by Westphal, saying each coach had his own style.

"If any of you want to ask me any negative questions about Paul and his coaching ... don't do it with me," he said.

Colangelo said he could wait no longer to make a move, coming on the heels of the Suns' fifth straight loss at home, an 89-74 loss to the Cleveland Cavaliers on Sunday night.

The team, playing without injured stars Charles Barkley, Danny Manning, John Williams and Kevin Johnson, shot 38 percent, matched the franchise one-game low of 28 field goals set in 1990 and scored the fewest points since the record low of 68 at Kansas City in March 1981.

Meanwhile, Dan Majerle, the player traded to Cleveland for Williams during training camp, got a 3-minute standing ovation from Phoenix fans before the game and scored 20 points.

The Suns are 14-19 and have lost seven of their last 10 games.

Colangelo told Westphal a month ago he was unhappy with the team's play, and said Tuesday he had been considering a move since the Suns took a 2-0 lead in Houston in the second round of the 1994 playoffs, then allowed the Rockets to eliminate them in seven games.

The Rockets also ousted the Suns in seven games in the same round last year.

"I've been concerned about the path we were taking the last couple of years, and I was just biding my time, hopeful that things would take a turn for the better. It didn't happen that way," Colangelo said.

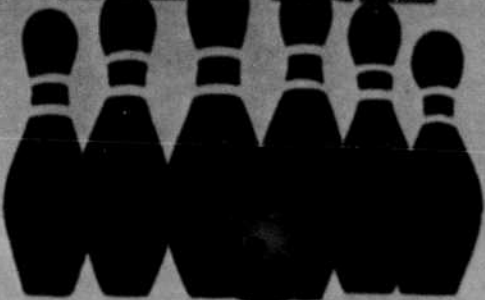

Ironically, Fitzsimmons groomed Westphal as an assistant for four years before turning over the reins on July 1, 1992 — only to take the reins back on Tuesday.

Fitzsimmons, 65, was 97-67 with the Suns from 1970-72 and 217-111 from 1988-1992, successes which helped him to an 805-745 record in a 19-year coaching career with the Atlanta Hawks, Buffalo Braves, Kansas City Kings, San Antonio Spurs and Suns.
